YANKS DRIVE INTO ITALY

Make Progress Despite Desperate Resistance By Nazis

Bryansk Fall To Red Forces Believed Near

Red Army Battles Within 12 Miles Of Nazi Central Front Base

GERMAN FORCES IN CRIMEA ARE PERILLED

By NATALIA RENE
(International News Service)

MOSCOW, Sept. 13—Russian capture of Bryansk appeared imminent today as a Red army spearhead battled the Nazis within 12 miles of that German central front anchor base.

(The British radio reported a big battle raging in the immediate vicinity of Bryansk and said Russian long-range artillery is shelling the city. The London broadcast was reported by CBS.

An event greater German disaster approached swiftly along the southern end of a flaming 600-mile front as other Russian armies pushed within striking distance of Pavlograd and Melitopol, key junctions on the Kharkov-Crimea railroad, threatening entrapment of large German forces in the Crimea and western Caucasus.

Capture of Belaya-Bereza, a dozen miles from Bryansk on the railroad from Orel, and the increased threat to the German lifeline to the Crimea were announced in a Soviet communique. The war bulletin listed gains up to 12 miles, seizure of 240 populated places and the killing of at least 3,900 Germans, bringing to nearly 8,000 the German death toll in Russia during the weekend.

Panic-Stricken Rout

An accelerating German retreat between the Bryansk sector and the Sea of Azov to the south appeared to be developing into panic-stricken rout in some sectors, front dispatches declared.

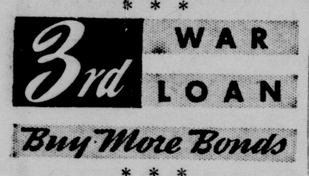

The new gains in the Bryansk sector came as three Russian columns crashed forward toward the Nazi anchor. The greatest menace came from a Soviet spearhead which overran Belaya-Bereza, east of Bryansk to come to within artillery range of the city.

Two other Russian columns,

Congress Faces Home Problems

Reconvenes Tuesday To Take Action On Home-Front Issues

FATHER DRAFT IS FOREMOST TOPIC

By ROBERT HUMPHREYS
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Congress reconvenes tomorrow faced with problems related to the draft of fathers, increased taxation and foreign policy.

Labeled the "Victory" Congress by Speaker of the House Rayburn when it assembled in January, the legislative branch will resume after a two-month recess with the interim capitulation of Italy looming large in the future deliberations.

Home-Front Problems

The recess, ordered by congressional leaders so members could regain first-hand contact with their constituents, terminates with indications pointing strongly toward renewed legislative attacks on New Deal handling of home-front problems.

Members who have already returned to the Capital have uniformly reported considerable unrest in their districts on domestic issues, but increasing satisfaction with operations on the military front. This would appear to indicate that the reconvening Congress will continue its sharpshooting at such agencies as OPA, OWI and the War Food Administration, while giving the War and Navy Departments solid support.

Certain to hold the spotlight in the opening days is the question of drafting pre-Pearl Harbor fathers. The order for the reclassification becomes effective October 1, which leaves Congress only 16 days in which to block it if that course is attempted.

Draft Measures

The Senate now has a bill by Sen. Wheeler (D) Mont., pending which, if passed would nullify the

Dedicate South Side Honor Roll

Large Crowd At Ceremonies On Sunday Afternoon—Roll Has 600 Names

South Siders honored their men in service Sunday afternoon, Sept. 12, when a handsome honor roll board was dedicated at the corner of South Mill and Phillips streets, with an estimated 3,000 people in the crowd attending.

Speakers for the dedication were Major Henry S. Carroll, of the Deshon General hospital in Butler, and Judge W. Walter Braham, of New Castle, chairman of the Third War Bond campaign.

In his address Major Carroll expressed his gratitude for the aid given the men in the hospital by citizens of New Castle. He touched upon the reason why the men were patients in the hospital, their service on foreign soil and their present recuperation from wounds. He urged the crowd to buy bonds to end the war speedily and thus keep down the casualty lists

Judge Braham complimented the South Side for its patriotism in erecting the board, but said that their patriotism would be further shown by buying bonds in this pres-

Capt. Young's widow, Mrs. Eleanor Young of Coronado, Cal., was the sponsor at the launching at the San Pedro shipyards of the Bethlehem Steel company.

Candidates Await Vote

Primary Election Campaign Is Being Concluded In City-County

POLLS OPEN AT 7 TUESDAY MORNING

Some little interest was engendered in the primary election of tomorrow, over the week-end. Individuals and groups suddenly went into action and for 48 hours the campaign locally looked something like a real election.

Today candidates are tying up loose ends, attending to last-minute calls, figuring up their expenses, and waiting hopefully. The indications still point to a light vote, probably not more than 35 to 40 per cent of the registered total.

The primary election tomorrow is almost exclusively a Republican affair, insofar as the list of candidates filed is concerned. The Republicans have filed candidates for every office, save a lot of election board jobs. The Democrats have filled only candidates for County Commissioner and Mayor of New Castle. Other than these, there are no Democratic candidates, although there will be names of candidates written into the Demcratic slots on the ballots.

The polls open at seven o'clock Tuesday morning and will remain open until eight o'clock at night. Election boards are to return their summaries immediately after they have completed them. Because of the comparatively few candidates and the expected light vote, the count should not take long.

The primary campaign is over. It has been reasonably clean of "smear" tactics, and almost devoid of public interest. What happens on Tuesday is anybody's guess, for in a light vote peculiar returns are sometimes seen.

Await Confirmation Of Reports Mussolini "Liberated" By Nazis

By LEO V. DOLAN
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Sept. 13 — Skeptical London today awaited confirmation of Adolf Hitler's announcement that Benito Mussolini had been "liberated" from Italian imprisonment.

The Axis meanwhile hailed the reported coup as the restoration of a leader to Italy's Blackshirts.

The former Italian premier, whose whereabout remained unknown, was freed in a surprise raid by Nazi parachutists and other flite troops yesterday, according to a communique from the German Fuehrer's headquarters.

Mussolini's abduction was declared to have "frustrated" delivery of the one-time Italian dictator to the Allies for trial as a war criminal.

Hitler Announcement

Hitler's announcement, broadcast over the German radio to the accompaniment of trumpet fanfares usually reserved for German military victories, indicated neither Mussolini's present whereabouts nor the scene of the purported German coup that freed the fallen Duce.

The Swiss radio later reported without confirmation that Mussolini was set free at a village near Palermo, Sicily, and brought to German-held territory in Italy by plane.

NAZI U-BOAT CREW RESCUED

British Destroyer Brings To Port 32 Of Crew Of Sunken U-Boat

By JOHN LEE
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

A NORTHERN BRITISH NAVAL BASE, Sept. 13.—The British destroyer Orwell returned to this base today with 32 survivors of a German U-boat and the story of how the Nazi marauder was sunk by a British Sunderland flying boat.

The 32 Germans—the entire crew of the sunken U-boat—were not arrogant like so many of their captured predecessors. On the contrary, they behave well and saluted properly when taken aboard the Orwell, according to Lieut. Com. John Hodges, D. S. O.

Hodges related: The submarine, sighted by our aircraft, submerged and was not seen until the following morning when a Royal Canadian air force Sunderland attacked it with depth charges, severely damaging the U-boat. Despite its condition the sub shot the Sunderland down.

"Our first intimation of the sub's presence came when we sighted a pall of smoke on the horizon from the crashed plane. We approached at full speed and saw two heavy explosions blow up the U-boat. Arriving on the scene, we found two large rubber rafts. The Sunderland wreckage sank as we arrived.

"We picked up the Germans on one raft, another destroyer rescued those on the second and a third destroyer saved the six-man crew of the Sunderland."

Bond Drive Is Gaining Speed

Approaching First Million In Sales, Scattered Reports Show Today

BOND MEETINGS ARE SCHEDULED

Figure this Third War Bond campaign in terms of a one mile race if you will. The start of the race was on September 9 and today Lawrence county is just nearing the one-eighth post. At noon day, Roger Jewett, deputy chairman of the drive announced that bond sales totals stood at $735,000 which sounds like a lot of money until you compare it to the total sought, $6,307,000.

The report was not a complete one but it did contain some fraternal sales. The B. P. O. E. turned in a purchase of $10,000 worth of bonds which is the first one of its size. The Duc d'Abruzzi is reported at $2,000 worth and others are in the making.

Bond Meetings

Bond meetings are being scheduled over the county for this week and the first two announced are Plaingrove township high school Wednesday night at 8 o'clock with Clyde McCommon and Ray Foster as co-chairmen. On Thursday night at 8 o'clock there will be a meeting in the Harlansburg high school for Scott township. Kenneth Brenneman and John Turner are co-chairmen.

In the meantime door-to-door solicitation is being made, industrial plants are holding bond rallies and there seems to be a spirit of resoluteness in the air.

Lawrence county has a big total to meet, the largest amount of money ever asked from this county in its history. On the other side of the ledger is the fact that Law-

FROST CAUSES MUCH DAMAGE

Victory gardens took a beating, as did commercial gardens Saturday night when a serious frost hit the low lands of the county, with the temperature dropping as low as 26 degrees in some places. The cost of the frost will be heavy, impossible of accurate estimate because of the many private gardens scattered over the county.

By 8 o'clock Saturday night the thermometer stood at 48. From there it kept on dropping and by midnight the frost was getting in its work.

Tomatoes, peppers, corn and beans were the heaviest sufferers. Tops of tomato plants were blighted, much of the fruit frost bitten and growers can be sure that the only fruit they will gather now is that which was under the vines and fairly well developed.

The bean acreage of H. W. Weinschenk and Sons in Shenango township took a heavy loss and other commercial gardeners suffered proportionately. Today Mr. Weinschenck is seeking help to harvest the bean crop before other frosts complete the damage.

U. S. Bombers Hit Island Of Rhodes

(International News Service)

CAIRO, Sept. 13.—American Air Force headquarters in the Middle East announced today that huge four-motored Liberators carried out a heavy daylight attack on the Nazi-operated airdromes at Maritza and Calato, on the Island of Rhodes. Six grounded planes were set afire during the raid, from which all American bombers returned safely.

The assault on Rhodes, northeast of Crete at the southern end of the Dodecanese chain, was carried out yesterday, the headquarters communique said.

Salamaua Fall Dooms Japanese Garrison At Lae

Capture Of Salamaua Airdrome Seals Fate Of 20,000 Japanese Troops

TRAPPED JAPS HAVE NO ESCAPE CHANCE

By FRANK ROBERTSON
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 13—Tough American and Australian fighters waged a battle of decimation against 20,000 trapped Japanese toops today after seizing the huge Salamaua airdrome, in the heart of the crumbling enemy defenses on the northeastern New Guinea coast.

Capture of the great airdrome announced today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters, spelled the doom of the town of Salamaua and the companion headquarters base at Lae, 18 miles up the coast.

Japs At Lae Doomed

(General Sir Thomas Blamey, Allied ground force commander in the Southwest Pacific, was quoted by Reuter's News Agency in London as declaring that "with no means of evacuation, the Japanese garrison at Lae is doomed.")

Climaxing a steamroller offensive launched June 30, the Allied troops swarmed onto the airfield from the south after wiping out the last defense positions on the Francisco river.

At Lae, meanwhile, the Japanese launched a weak counter-attack against the lower bridgehead established by the Allies on the Busu river following the spectacular paratroop landings Sept. 4 under Gen. MacArthur's direction.

Employes Of Universal Sanitary Manufacturing Co. Spur Sales

WOUNDED SOLDIER AMONG SPEAKERS

Employes of the Universal Sanitary Manufacturing Company opened their Third War Bond campaign Saturday when a mass meeting was held on the company property, outside the plant. Men and women of the company gathered at eleven-thirty to take part in the rally and at the close of it six thousand dollars of bonds was announced as the starting sales of the drive.

Clyde Whittaker, secretary of the company was introduced by Daniel Carroll, personnell manager, as the master of ceremonies of the meeting. The rally opened with the "Star Spangled Banner," directed by Miss Mary Solomon.

Introduces President

W. Keith McAfee, president of the company was introduced and outlined briefly the reasons for the rally and the drive. "We have been supporting the war effort" said Mr. McAfee," "and I know that all of us will do everything in his power to keep the men at the front supplied with equipment."

Howard Lowry, an employe of the plant who served in the South Pacific area but has been honorably discharged from the service was introduced and took a bow.

Bart Richards spoke briefly upon the bond drive and urged the employes to exceed even their fine record in the past of bond purchases.

The feature of the rally was the presence of Sergeant Gene

GLIDER EXPERTS KILLED IN CRASH

(International News Service)

MARCH FIELD, Cal., Sept. 13—Army investigators today studied the twisted and torn parts of a wrecked glider to try to learn the cause of a crash that claimed the lives of two of the nation's foremost glider experts.

The glider experts were Richard Chichester Du Pont of the wealthy Delaware Du Pont family and Col. P Ernest Gabel.

They were among four men who perished when an experimental glider being tested preparatory to delivery to the army crashed in a plowed field just south of March Field. Two others, Paul G. Wells and Harvey M. Pearl, both civilians, parachuted to safety.

The glider went into a spin from which it was never righted immediately after being cut loose from the tow plane at 3,000 feet.

Voting At Tuesday Primaries To Be On Thousands Of Local Candidates

LIGHT VOTE IS STATE OUTLOOK

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Sept. 13.—Pennsylvania's off-year primary election campaign came to a close today with thousands of candidates for local and state offices awaiting the balloting tomorrow by a generally apathetic electorate.

Faced with forecasts of an extremely light vote, organization leaders made last-minute appeals to party stalwarts to nominate their standard-bearers.

Only State-Wide Election

In the only statewide election, that for superior court, the major party candidates, Judge Claude T. Reno, Republican incumbent, and Judge Curtis Bok, of the Philadelphia common pleas court, were without party opposition and assured of nomination. They will be opposed in the Nov. 2 general election by Charles Palmer, Ridley Park attorney, nominee of the Prohibition party which did not participate in the primary election.

A politically-significant fight for Republican party control will be decided tomorrow in Allegheny county, where County Commissioner John S. Herron, the organization's candidate, is being opposed for re-nomination and election by Sheriff Robert J. Corbett who heads an insurgent slate.

Many Mayoralty Contests

Nominees will also be named tomorrow in 28 mayoralty contests, the most important in Philadelphia where the Democrats hope to end Republican domination in the fall. With intra-party opposition for the $18,000-a-year Philadelphia mayor-

British Troops Capture Port City Of Crotone

Entire Underside Of Italian Toe Now Under Allied Control

GERMANS BATTLE YANK ADVANCE

BULLETIN
(International News Service)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 13.—The American Fifth Army was locked in grim combat in the Naples area today with powerful German units holding well-placed defensive positions, prepared before the invasion of the Italian mainland.

Although details were meagre, it was officially disclosed that one of the severest struggles of the war was being fought, with both sides using tanks freely.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, In North Africa, Sept. 13.—The entire underside of the Italian toe, vital airbase and harbor region, fell under Allied control today as British Eighth Army troops stormed into the port city of Crotone.

At the same time, American Fifth Army troops edged inland from their steadily-widening bridgeheads in the Salerno region south of Naples on the west coast in the face of the most desperate resistance yet offered by the hard-pressed Nazi defenders.

British Tommies striking eastward from Catanzaro, which they occupied Saturday, fought their way into Crotone after an advance of 30

Movement Of German Ground Forces In Italy Is Crippled

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 13.—The Allied air force was revealed today to have fought an unrelenting sky battle yesterday designed to cripple the movement of German ground forces.

At the same time Allied airmen mauled every attempt of the German air force to get a crack at our ground forces and sea traffic.

In the area of the Salerno beachhead the luftwaffe seemed to be licking its wounds. Between 90 and 100 Nazi fighters were active in this area yesterday, and four of them were shot down in dogfights.

Hit Nazi Transport

Meanwhile American fighters and bombers, operating round the clock, ripped into German motor transports and pounded highway and railroad junctions and airfields in the wide Naples arc in a campaign to isolate all approaches to that battleground.

Between 50 and 60 German trucks were believed to have been destroyed during the day.

Trainshed Burns At Philadelphia

Fire Loss Of $250,000 Is Reported At P. R. R. Broad St. Station

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13—Train service was restored to normal today after a $250,000 fire swept the trainsheds of the Pennsylvania Railroad's Broad Street station yesterday, destroying all 16 tracks, six passenger cars, and tying up Central City traffic for hours.

Almost 300 persons were treated for minor injuries, received in fighting the blaze but only three needed hospital treatment. All passengers and train employes were escorted to safety.

The fire started in the station's engine room and spread rapidly through underground storage and baggage rooms. Air compressor tanks from which train brakes are filled exploded as the fire gained headway. The roar of the exploding tanks was heard for several miles.

"No Signs Of Sabotage"

A preliminary investigation showed "no signs of sabotage," police reported. Members of the FBI, the fire bureau, railroad police and units of army and navy intelligence arrived soon after the blaze started.

Train traffic was tied up for a short time by the fire, but was restored to normal by using the facilities of the nearby suburban station and the Thirtieth Street station.

As the flames still roared, workmen built a temporary "station" on the track level just a block beyond the ruined train shed. Railroad officials predicted that by 7 a. m. today passengers would be moving over emergency platforms to board cars there.

Although embers from the blaze threatened buildings across the street from the tracks and also endangered the 61-year-old station, firemen limited the flames to the track and shed area.

Hundreds of civilian defense volunteers and units of the armed forces rushed to the scene, where sailors from the Philadelphia Navy Yard were credited with saving 500 suitcases and bags from the flaming baggage room. Railroad officials estimated that 1500 pieces of luggage were lost.

AWAIT CONFIRMATION OF REPORTS MUSSOLINI "LIBERATED" BY NAZIS

ed by Reynolds Packard, writing for the combined U. S. press, as reporting that Mussolini had been living on the Italian Island of Ponza, near Naples, since his Fascist regime collapsed. The former Italian dictator also came to Ventotene Island, 40 miles west of Naples, 12 hours before Steinbeck visited the Allied-held island, said the dispatch. Steinbeck said Mussolini was in the custody of Italian army officers and still dreams and talks of returning to power.)

The German communique's mention of the use of parachutists suggested the reported coup may have taken place at some island either held by Allied troops or controlled by Allied naval forces.

Recent reports via Switzerland said Mussolini was imprisoned on the resort Isle of Ischia, at the northern entrance to the Bay of Naples, where he was said to have been taken from the Braschi Fortress at Rome's outskirts.

London observers anticipated that if the reported "liberation" of Mussolini is confirmed, the former Fascist dictator would resume his title of "Duce and Premier" at the head of the German sponsored "National Fascist Government" of Italy.

order. In the House Chairman Andrew May (D) Ky., of the military affairs committee, has announced he will introduce a bill tomorrow to prevent the draft of fathers and allow those already in the Army to seek discharge.

With President Roosevelt seeking 12 billion dollars in additional revenue, the House ways and means committee, which must initiate all revenue bills, will start working on a tax measure September 20. Present sentiment makes it unlikely that Congress will vote much more than half the sum requested, or a total increase in the tax burden of approximately six billion dollars.

The recent action by the Republican post-war advisory council at Mackinaw Island, Mich., proposing U. S. participation in a "co-operative organization" of nations to prevent future wars, has taken the edge off anticipated debate on foreign policy.

There are resolutions in both the Senate and House which would commit Congress to a similar course.

Batter Jap Shipping

As Allied ground troops dealt a death blow to Japanese air power by overrunning the Salamaua 'drome, bombers of Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney's air force roared northward to batter enemy shipping off New Ireland and New Britain. A 3,000-ton Japanese, freighter-transport and a smaller cargo vessel were left blazing off New Ireland and four supply barges were sunk or damaged off New Britain.

In the Solomons, three Japanese merchantmen were bombed and 12 barges were attacked by American naval patrol units off the coasts of Vella Lavella and Kolombangara Islands. Nine of the barges were destroyed and three damaged, the communique said.

Australian - flown Beaufighters meanwhile bombarded the Selaru airdrome in the Tanimbar Islands, north of Australia in the Arafura Sea.

Three separate runs were made over the 'drome and adjacent villages by the speedy planes, which raked truck parking lots, supply dumps and bivouac areas. The raid resulted in the igniting of huge fires at the base and the sinking of a Jap coastal vessel off shore.

We know, too, that YOU won't let America down. That YOU won't say, "I've done all I can." For your job is no less important than that of the man in uniform. And this month your country asks everyone who possibly can to invest in at least one extra $100 War Bond.

You know the benefits of War Bonds. They're the safest investment in the world. They secure your future. They help your country and your loved ones doing the fighting.

Schweinsberg, who was badly injured at Kassarine Gap in North Africa. Sergeant Schweinsberg underemphasized his own part in the battling in North Africa but the fact that he needed a cane to support him as he spoke was mute evidence of what he had been through.

"Your brothers and cousins are doing a grand job of chasing the Axis" said the sergeant, "but it takes money to feed them, clothe them, and provide them with weapons and ammunition They're doing a job for you. Now they are asking you do a job for them."

Union Head Speaks

Harry Mehlman, head of the union local at the plant was introduced and spoke. "Of course we are back of this Third War Bond campaign," said Mr. Mehlman. I hope all of you back this campaign up to the limit."

Vice President and Sales Manager Ray Carruthers closed the speaking program. RETREAT TO THE DNIEPER

THE POSSIBILITY that Russian soldiers might one day carry the war to German soil is one which has never found a place in the speculations of the Nazis and has not been considered seriously by Russia's allies. There has been admiration for the Soviet military performance and confidences in the survival of Russia has never been greater.

But until now there has been no thought of the ejection of the Nazi invaders from the soil of Russia. The area captured was so vast and the positions established were apparently so strong that full recovery of the lost ground seemed to be outside the range of possibility.

So great has been the transformation of the situation on the Eastern Front that this possibility now exists. In fact, the military achievements of the Soviet armies during this memorable summer and the diminishing strength of the Germans encourage confidence in a penetration of German soil. There now remain to the Germans no positions that can be held east of the Dnieper river, the last main line of defense on Russian soil.

The question now is whether the Germans can hold this line. Undoubtedly, they will make every effort to do so, even to the extent of weakening their forces elsewhere on the continent. The prospects of having the Russians loose in the Reich is one to bring terror to the hearts of the Nazis. The Russians will bring burning hatred with them when they reach the homeland of their enemies—hatreds having their origin in wasted lands, in ravaged cities, in slaughtered civilians, in sufferings and sacrifices to chill the heart. It will be understandable if the vengeance of the Russians assumes terrifying forms.

The resistance along the Dnieper will be a desperate, savage business in which the Germans will be prepared to suffer great losses in an effort to keep Russian armies out of the Reich. In the fighting of recent months there has been nothing to support the theory that the German armies, which have yielded steadily to the over-powering might of the Russians, can hold back the avenging hordes.

ALASKA'S BID

Agitation fostered by Delegate J. Dimond of Alaska to admit that territory into the Union as the forty-ninth state, will focus added attention upon this huge far northwestern land. It is true that Alaska is twice the size of Texas and its population now is more than 100,000, but how much of the territory is fit for human habitation?

When the thousands of service men and war workers now in that far northern country return to the states, they will either put the stamp of approval upon it as a "new country" worth going to or turn thumbs down. Their reaction will be the deciding factor in Alaska's bid for statehood.

FORCING JAPS TO 'PULL IN'

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's success in cutting off a force of nearly 20,000 Japanese in northeastern New Guinea is a further indication of Japanese inability to hold the outer edges of their vast arc of domination in the Pacific. The enemy's weakness in that respect already has been demonstrated in the Aleutians and the central Solomons.

Japanese shipping is being dealt almost a paralyzing blow by American offensive action. One of the most significant developments of the Pacific War was the announcement of Secretary of the Navy Knox that more than one-third of Japanese prewar tonnage and tonnage acquired by seizure of new construction had been sunk by American submarines, surface craft and airplanes. Japan has failed completely to meet the problem in the Pacific that the United Nations have solved in the Atlantic.

The Japs soon will be forced to pull in drastically to shorten their lines and hold what they have. That means the Allied forces will be closing in on them and acquiring better bases at shorter range for the assault on the inner stronghold.

STILL OUR JOB TO SMASH JAPAN

Japanese rage over the surrender of Italy seems almost to have equaled that in Berlin. To the Japs it threatens the addition of powerful naval forces, both British and American, from the Mediterranean to Far Pacific areas.

This, indeed, may yet become a vitally important by-product of a housecleaning in the Mediterranean. But while we hope for such early naval reinforcements in Japan's front yard, the Italian campaign—and other campaigns to stem from it—are likely to require very large naval forces for some time to come.

The fact gives added importance to the statement made at Kansas City by Undersecretary of the Navy Forrestal that by the end of this year we shall have more than 14 first-line aircraft carriers with our own fleet, which is growing rapidly in other categories and will soar to 5,000,000 tons during next year.

Our best chance of swift, decisive, smashing action against Japan itself rests upon the United States Navy, now deployed in the Pacific earnestly seeking to come to grips with the navy of Japan. We cannot depend with certainty on early reinforcement by ships from European areas. They must go out from the navy yards and shipyards, the war plants and aircraft factories of America.

What Noted People Say

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill in joint message to the Italian people: "All will come well. March forward with your American and British friends in the great world movement towards freedom, justice and peace."

OTTAWA — Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King: "Defeat of the German armies in Italy—the phase of the war on which we have just entered—is but a prelude to the real task. In Europe, Germany always has been the real enemy. Victory over Hitlerite Germany will not be achieved without a tremendous struggle."

SAN FRANCISCO — Undersecretary of War Robert L. Patterson: "The surrender of Italy indicates a glorious victory in Europe. But... this is no time to start taking it easy....We will need an army the same size as originally planned and production of weapons must continue unabated."

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

HELP POOR STUDENT

The child who received low grades last June begins this fall at a disadvantage. Some parents through wise planning and skillful guidance have done a great deal to help this child make a successful beginning. As you know, the student's degree of success during the first few weeks of school often sets the pace for the entire year.

A mother wrote:

"Dear Dr. Myers: My 15-year-old daughter went into senior high school this fall with C's and D's on her report card. Our three other children raised under identical circumstances presented no such problems. The sense of pride we all want to enjoy as parents is considerably dampened by her record.

Parents Accuse Poor Student

"The complaint I heard in the lower grades was, Linda is a good reader but doesn't remember what she reads. When trying to read Julius Caesar she is overwhelmed.

"We have accused her of laziness and yet she is neat and orderly about her personal appearance. Her English is good and she cooks, irons and helps generally about the house. She has a remarkable memory for dates other than history and is alert and observing about everyday affairs. Linda is most obedient about everything but doing her schoolwork, over which she will dawdle for hours. A self-addressed envelope is enclosed."

I wrote this mother about as follows: Please quit accusing that daughter of laziness. Show strong appreciation of her unusual readiness to help about the home. You and I don't work best at what we do very poorly and we escape such work when we can; nor do we remember well what is unpleasant. She will want to work harder at her school work as she wins more success at it.

Helps In Reading

Apparently Linda has been a mere reader for years and has not gained high skill at getting meaning from the printed page. Since she is observant of everyday affairs you might try discussing the leading items of news in the daily paper with her, and induce her to read it more. One reads the newspaper for meaning, for news.

Read aloud to her from her English book assignments. Now and then she might like to read a portion of it to you. As you and she read together from her history or science books, help her turn each paragraph into a sentence of her own words. Try to do this reading and studying with her in a companionable way. Be very calm and patient so as never to make her feel ashamed of her difficulties, help her gain hope and confidence. No doubt you have often reminded her of the good school grades of the other children. Any such comparison or expression of disappointment over her grades magnifies her feeling of inferiority and reduces her interest in her school work. I am enclosing my "Tips to Students", and my "Home Helps for Poor Readers, Part II."

Solving Parent Problems

Q. How should one answer the tot's questions about the war?

A. Calmly and frankly, but not dwelling long on them.

Looking At Life

By ERICH BRANDEIS

All we folks who write get plenty of letters—they are the spice of life.

It's easy enough to cope with the kicks, you get used to them.

I have been called almost everything under the sun, a sourpuss, a Democrat a Republican a Red, a crank, a crackpot and several names I can't print.

But the letters we all love but are so hard to live up to are those in which our readers picture us as models of wisdom, of virtue and strength.

And yet, we writing folks, are no different from any other human beings.

Just last Saturday my plumber said:

"How I wish I could write! What a swell life you fellows lead."

But when I had to pay his bill, I said to him:

"How I wish I could plumb. Look at all the dough you guys get!" (Fine language for a writer, isn't it?)

Personally, I have always envied people who can do things with their hands.

Why do you want to write?

I wish I were as handy with a monkey wrench as I am with the typewriter.

I wish I had the green thumb that makes flowers grow and vegetables and grass.

I wish I could build a house, or fix a broken lawn-mower, or cook a chicken fricassee.

I wish I could sell things that people don't want. I wish I could run a locomotive, or fly a plane.

One thing I've never wished for though, was to be a crooner.

I've never wanted to be a Frank Sinatra, a Victor Mature, or a Nelson Eddy.

Nor have I ever wanted to be a millionaire, a glamour girl, or a hotel manager.

But a good truck driver, swell. Everybody has to get out of the way for you, and you can get all the gas you want.

No, dear readers, don't think that to be a writer is to live a life of ease or to go drifting along on a rosy cloud.

Writing is tough business—particularly to find things to write about.

Otherwise why do you think I'd be writing this?

The weak start trouble. The strong wouldn't be tyrants if they had no weak ones to impose on.

The political job in Europe is to crack the Fascists without filling the place with crackpots.

HINTS AND DINTS

Sun sets tonight 7:14. Sun rises tomorrow 6:39.

It's a pleasure seeing the boys and girls going to school, especially the little ones who are going for their first term.

We know a man who fell in love at a skating party six years ago and has been skating on thin ice ever since.

There are many good reasons now for not traveling in any way now.

The most important letter in the word "oyster" is, of course, the "r".

Well, folks, brace yourself for one that's not new, but good just the same:

A demure young thing asked: "Oh, what kind of an officer are you?"

"I'm a naval surgeon," was the answer.

"Dear, dear, how you doctors do specialize," she said.

Buying bonds will help win the war. Buy all you can.

Always after a big accident there is an investigation, but they don't amount to much.

Mary said, "How do you like the new job ye have, Patrick?"

"Oh, fine, Mary, fine! Don't ye know they made me boss of me gang the first day I was there?"

"Is that so, Patrick? And how many have ye in your gang?"

"Oh, jist meself," said Patrick.

We heard about a boss barber who was supposed to have said this to a young apprentice he was training: "Here comes a man you can practice on. Be careful you don't cut yourself with your razor."

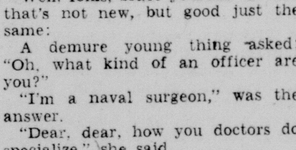

You get $4 back for every $3 you invest in war bonds.

When the family show off new ideas and knowledge, it means they have beat you to the new Reader's Digest.

Another difference is that a man who finally boils over and curses you is through with you; but a woman can remove your hide and love you as usual next day.

We never see anything at the bathing beaches remotely resembling the newspaper bathing beauties.

It's exciting to get gossip in tiny fragments and put the bits together like parts of a jigsaw puzzle.

When he revisits the old home town, everything seems smaller except his old sweetheart, and she has doubled.

ONE ON THE DOC

And now for a gag we heard in a hospital the other day, told by a nurse:

The doctor said his patient was all run down. "Miss Jones," he said, "you're badly in need of a little sun and air."

Miss Jones retorted: "Well, doctor, don't you think I'd better get married first?"

No doubt some people who get vacations with pay would like to have double pay.

It used to cost a lot of money to collect the empty tin cans in this country. Now people are getting paid for collecting them and it does away with a mess and does a good job for the war.

Some enjoy their vegetable diet more by letting the cow eat it and then take their's in the form of roast beef.

Very often when a married man is found dead, poisoned, his wife is looked upon with suspicion, especially if they have been a fighting couple.

It's the birds who cannot sing who always want to sing.

When you buy a war bond, keep it. It may come in handy some day.

Don't dig your potatoes too soon. They will keep better in the ground than in any other place.

LEARNED HIS LESSON

She: "Do you believe that dark-haired men marry first?"

He: "No, it's the light-headed ones."

REAL CAUSE OF NOISE

The fire engine went clanging up the street, its bell making a terrific clangor.

"Are those bells ringing for fire?" asked a visitor.

"Nope," answered a small boy who was puffing along after the engine. "There's plenty of fire now. What they want is water."

MARRYING IN OWN AGE GROUP ALWAYS SAFE

"My daughter, 38, is planning to marry a childless widower of 52. Although she has never married, she is still very attractive, and does not look more than 30. I feel suhe she could get a man nearer her own age. Don't you think that the fourteen years difference in their ages is too much and that her chances of happiness with this older man are uncertain?"—Worried Mother.

Answer: If they are congenial, companionable and in love their chances for happiness are very good. If she were eighteen and he thirty-two, the disparity in years might prove hazardous because most girls that young are flighty, unsettled, and unsuited for the responsibilities of marriage with a man past his first youth. But your daughter and this man of her choice are practically in the same age group. Their tastes are probably similar. Besides a woman nearing forty, regardless of her glamour, has not too many matrimonial chances, so I suggest that your daughter go ahead with her plans, if this man pleases her fancy and if his income is sufficient to give her financial security—which is an all-important item at her time of life.

Question: We have been engaged for two years. Should my fiance name the day or does his proposal leave that for me to decide?—Fiancee.

Answer: The month of the wedding is usually decided upon by mutual consent but it is always the bride's privilege to set the exact day. Sometimes the date in mentioned when the engagement is announced. Sometimes it remains indefinite due to financial difficulties or other reasons. An engagement should not last more than six months, unless it has to be prolonged for unavoidable reasons.

I should certainly be wary of the young man who goes for years "being engaged," with no thought of setting a date for the wedding day. This is decidedly unfair to the girl as it leaves her in doubt as to her status.

BREEZY REJOINDER

On the North African front a big rawboned Yankee sergeant was herding a bunch of German prisoners to the rear. On the face of one of the heinies, a blustering, sputtering officer, there was a look of extreme bewilderment.

"I cannot understand it," said he. "These are Rommel's storm troops."

"Storm troops, hell," rejoined the Yank. "I'm from Kansas, where they raise cyclones."

In a certain community there were two rivals for the honor of being the leading citizen. They took opposite sides in politics, religion and all other matters. If one were in favor of any sort of plan of community enterprise the other was violently opposed to it.

So it went on for years and it was generally agreed that their motive was one of personal pride and egotism. Finally one died, and the funeral date was set. A neighbor asked the other if he was going to attend. His answer was that he would not be there but he wanted it fully understood that he heartily approved of it.

Martha: "That's one thing I've never done yet."

Arthur: "Petted?"

Martha: "No; objected."

If you have decided that the world and yourself are doomed, try taking some exercise and a cold shower to get your blood circulating.

"To what do you attribute your great age?" asked the city visitor of Grandpa Eben Hoskins.

"I can't say yit," answered Grandpa cautiously. "There's several o' them testimonial guys a-dickerin' with me."

"Thanks very much," said the minister. "I must call this afternoon and thank your mother for those eight beautiful apples."

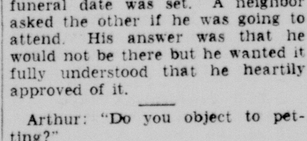

"Please, sir," said Tommy, "do you mind thanking her for 12 apples?"

When a man's work is outstanding it becomes a target for both the ambitious—and the lazy.

In case you have forgotten, Americans passed a law forbidding the importation of slaves before the Revolution, and England killed it for the sake of business.

One night she got kissed,
And saw what she'd missed,
And her tears trickled down in great torrents.

Inside Washington

Believe Secrecy Will Shroud First Confab Of "Big Three"
Wingmen Unsung Air Heroes

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—When and if the Allied "Big Three"—Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin—gather for a momentous war conference, it is a safe bet that the world will hear nothing about it until the talks are concluded and the Soviet battle chief is safe back in Moscow's Kremlin.

Most Washington observers think that Russian Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov established a precendent for secrecy when he was in the United States last year. No word of Molotov's presence was made public until he had returned to Moscow.

Although Churchill's comings and going to the American continent have been accompanied by considerable fanfare and publicity, capital newsmen kept Molotov's visit secret in the good faith of wartime censorship. White House Secretary Stephen Early finally announced the visit and issued photographs of Molotov's arrival by plane and his greeting by Secretary of State Hull and other American officials.

The Russian foreign commissar stayed a night at the historic old Blair house, across from the executive mansion, and on more than one occasion passersby noted the stocky Soviet official and remarked: "Who is that man? He looked exactly like pictures of Molotov."

Stalin is thought certain to insist that the same secrecy be accorded any meeting which he may have with Roosevelt and Churchill. Furthermore, such a conference will not be held until the Russian leader has satisfied himself that definite results can be achieved.

There are some observers who think that Stalin might journey to some point within the Soviet borders to meet the Allied chieftains. Others believe he might fly the seas.

If the meeting occurs—and some London sources say that Stalin has definitely agreed to it—it is thought certain that Molotov will be present along with the two Russian experts on Anglo-American affairs—the former ambassador to the United States, Maxim Litvinov, and the former ambassador to Great Britain, Ivan Maisky.

One of the big reasons for U. S. air victories in the southwest Pacific and other parts of the globe is teamwork. United States flyers protect each other when aloft.

Several American aces who have returned home from the battle fronts have given full credit for many of their victories to the valiant, unheralded performance of their "wing men." They admit they would never live to be aces if the wing men did not protect them from surprise attacks from the rear.

The wing men seldom, if ever, break into the headlines. They do not pile up a spectacular record of shooting down Japanese planes. They fly out on the "edge" of the fighting, so to speak, and guard the aces who are in there pouring death and destruction into Tojo's flyers.

The high rate of Japanese combat plane losses in battle with American pilots are almost too good to be true, but United States flyers say that actually they are even higher than official reports from Washington and the war zone indicate.

According to Washington, the American marksmen since the beginning of the Guadalcanal offensive have averaged five enemy planes shot down for every United States plane lost. In some battles this has been boosted to as high as 20 to 1.

American fighter pilots point out, however, that their reports are checked over carefully and they must actually see a Jap plane disintegate in the air or crash to the ground or into the sea before they can claim it. Otherwise they are credited with a Jap plane probably destroyed or damaged.

Officials now have gotten over their early fear that American airmen could not keep up the terrific rate of destruction. Combat flyers will tell you that the quality of Jap pilots has deteriorated considerably and their planes now are no real match for the newer and improved types of United States planes. American pilot morale is high, too, because they are given better protective armor and every effort is made to rescue them when their planes are shot down.

A GRANDPA WONDERS

Time was in Eighteen-Ninety-Three
And old man Grandpa seemed to me
His hair was thin and silver gray,
His beard was much like tangled hay.
He seldom walked without a cane.
He dreaded snow and feared the rain.
His rheumatism or his gout
Was all I thought he talked about.

My grandpa's age I wasn't told.
When I was only twelve years old
They taught me old men all expect
From children kindness and respect
Deep in his chair he'd often doze,
His spectacles upon his nose.
Today this shock has come to me:
I'm older now than, then, was he!

I wonder if my grandson thinks
As I sit snatching "forty winks"
To rest a little if I can:
"I'm sorry for the poor, old man!"
No doubt when from this earth I've gone,
And he still happily lives on,
He'll tell the children at his knee
How old his grandpa seemed to be.

Great Game Of Politics

It's Up To Mr. Stalin

Washington, Sept. 13.

MORE AND more the conference with Mr. Stalin sought by the Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill seems essential. Clearly, the full weight of the Allied forces cannot be made to count before the war ends without a better understanding with the head of the Soviet Union. Even more clearly, the tremendous problem of preventing general economic collapse in Europe after the war ends cannot be effectively handled without his cooperation.

NO MATTER how firmly the indispensable British-American post-war alliance is cemented, the desirability of complete Russian accord is very great. The time has about arrived when Mr. Stalin has got to be talked to. In the interests of all, his evasiveness must be overcome. If he cannot, because of his preoccupation with the battle front, leave Russia for a conference, then the conference will have to be held there. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill have offered to go anywhere at any time. But, somewhere and soon, the meeting has to be held. The British and ourselves have got to know the Russian situation. A conference of Foreign Ministers is good as a preliminary. And a Mediterranean council on which Russia will be represented is desirable, too. But, neither takes the place of a conference with Stalin. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill have got to find out what is in Mr. Stalin's mind, how far he will go with them, how much he can be depended upon. Those things can only be ascertained from Mr. Stalin personally and directly.

OR, IF he won't confer and won't reveal his feelings, it is better to find that out definitely now. If the British and ourselves have got to play the post-war hand alone it is best to know that as soon as possible. We do not want to have to do it, but it can be done. However, the belief in Washington is that a conference is scheduled. Mr. Roosevelt, in effect, has said so. Mr. Churchill has extended the invitation again and the stage seems set. It will be the most important conference of the war. It is not too much to say that upon it hinges the future of the world. If a formula for complete American-British-Russian cooperation after the war can be found, the whole situation will be vastly improved and no problem need be considered insoluble. On the other hand, failure to find such a formula will add to the burdens and the perils of generations to come—including those of Russia.

IT IS reasonable to think that Messrs. Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin are all aware of this and that everyone of them sees the advantage of accord to his own country. Nevertheless, accord will not be

TO ANY "JIM WHITE"

A sarcastic editor says he would be interested in a brief, convincing exposition of the reasoning which led the Office of Price Administration to forbid suburbanites to fatten their own beef.

"The number who have land on which to raise a steer is relatively small, of course," says this editor. "But can you think of any good reason why Jim White, who has a couple of acres of grass, shouldn't raise his own calf, kill it or have it killed, and eat the meat if he wants to do so?"

The editor may regret that request. An exposition of the reasoning may be handed to him one of these days, and he'll be sorry he spoke. It may be in the form of a bale of testimony on the subject of black markets, which has been accumulating by the ton.

This exposition will not be brief. No analysis of it could be brief. Indeed, there is but one brief explanation—there's a war on.

Jim White can raise and butcher his calf if he wants to, but he'll have to do it under wartime regulations. Unless he's looking for grief, he'll get rid of the calf and rent his pasture for a chicken run.

Fourth Term For Roosevelt Depends On Twelve States

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON—A fourth term for President Roosevelt can be determined by only 12 out of the 48 states, according to a compilation of election statistics released by Col Edwin A. Halsey, secretary of the Senate.

The 12 states—two of them in the South—control 277 out of 531 votes in the electoral college, or 11 more than a simple majority.

The states, and the number of electoral college votes which each of the 12 has, are:

New York, 47; Pennsylvania, 36; Illinois, 29; Ohio, 26; Texas, 23; California, 22; Michigan, 19; Massachusetts, 17; New Jersey, 16; Missouri, 15; Indiana, 14, and North Carolina, 13.

How It Looks Now

So, if Democrats merely hold on to a solid South that is normally theirs, and wage successful campaigns in only 10 other states, they will be "in" next year.

On the other hand, if Republicans make the headway they are reputed to be making in the South, the GOP has a good chance of upsetting the administration applecart.

Some of the states in the list of 12 already have shown strong GOP leanings. Republicans displaced Michigan's lone Democratic senator last fall. In Illinois the Republican senator was re-elected and a Republican governor was put in office. New Jersey also defeated a Democratic senator for a Republican.

Republicans Gain

In Massachusetts and Pennsylvania Republican senators managed to hold on to their seats.

In Delaware, Wyoming, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Iowa, West Virginia and South Dakota, none of which are on the key list, Republicans won seats that were Democratic or liberal before. Also they held some seats in states that are not on the key list.

Moreover, it is uncomfortable Democratic history that in the 1940 race Wendell Willkie polled 22,304,755 votes to President Roosevelt's 27,243,466, giving the administration of a much narrower margin of victory than in 1932 and 1936.

Margin Relatively Slim

Thus, shift of a relatively few popular votes in states where Democratic majorities were slim, would have materially increased the GOP's electoral college vote and more clearly indicate its strength.

Colonel Halsey's tabulation also shows that in the 17 elections beginning with 1876, Republicans have won 10 times and Democrats seven.

Three Democrats—Grover Cleveland, William Jennings Bryan and Franklin D. Roosevelt, each sought the presidency three times. Bryan lost each time, Cleveland won twice, and Franklin Roosevelt thrice.

Set Up Own Unit In Volunteer Farm Labor Service; Work Praised

(International News Service)

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Of course they haven't lost touch with movies and chocolate sodas and sundaes, but 22 Branford, Pa., girl scouts have discovered other interests this summer in a unique set-up in New York State Volunteer Farm Labor Service.

"They're doing a swell piece of work and we wish we had more like them." That's the way farmers in the Brocton area size up the work of the girls and their supervisor Madlyn Knorr.

And as for the girls, they are enjoying every minute of the time spent in the fields. Organized through the enterprise of Miss Knorr, a practical nurse, the girls set up their own camp, "Tumble Inn," a lake shore cottage at Van Buren point. They have completely financed their housing, food, and other expenses through their earnings on the farms.

The girls found work through the assistance of the farm labor placement representative of the United States employment service. Because of the satisfactory manner in which they work, demand for their services has been greater than they could meet. Among their accomplishments this summer was picking 2,244 quarts of black raspberries and 741 quarts of currants for farmer Kirby Hayward, who paid them five cents a pound and four cents a quart respectively for these crops.

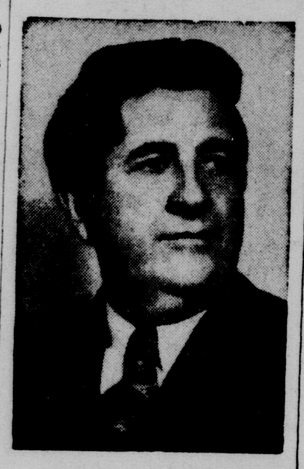

The girls are planning to break camp near the end of the month, but after that Miss Knorr, who works with the girls in the fields, may take a turn at supervising another group before she enlists in the WACS in late September.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

easy. For one thing, there is the difficulty of language. Mr. Stalin does not speak English; the Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill do not speak Russian. All intercourse has to be through interpreters which though it can be done, is the hard way to achieve understandings. For another thing, while Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill know each other well, neither knows Stalin well. We have never had an Ambassador who had his confidence. The much advertised Mr. Joe Davies never saw him but once when he represented us in Moscow, and that was when he went to say farewell. No Englishman and no American is on intimate terms with him. None really knows what kind of a man he is.

BETWEEN THE Russians and ourselves there are many points of difference, many things upon which we do not see eye to eye. But, none of these need prevent an accord on the great basic problems that confront the world—not only in winning the war but in keeping the world steady while we make peace. Far apart as we are, the best informed opinion is that the cooperation of Mr. Stalin can be secured and an effective British-American-Russian post-war alliance achieved. Moreover, it can be done without being apologetic to Mr. Stalin. Certainly, considering what we have sent Russia, as revealed in General Marshall's report, there is no excuse for being apologetic. Distinctly, it is not necessary to "appease" Mr. Stalin or to attempt to charm him. The general conviction is that he is an exceedingly practical man to whom only practical arguments seem good.

THIS BEING so, it is to be hoped that before he goes into conference Mr. Roosevelt will either forget his "four freedoms" or at least desist from bringing them up. They will not appeal to Mr. Stalin. At least two of them—freedom of expression and freedom of religion—do not exist in his country. The fact is that Mr. Roosevelt's Quebec declaration that he is "everlastingly angry" with those who do not take the "four freedoms" as an inspired utterance has not helped clarify national thought on the vital subject of post-war planning—quite the contrary. It may be to some a terrifying thing to think of encountering the "everlasting anger" of Mr. Roosevelt, but his insistence upon classifying his "four freedoms" with the Declaration of Independence, the Magna Carta and the Ten Commandments is just one of those things that would not be suggested save by a man whose sense of values had become distorted by pride of authorship—or in some other way.

THERE IS nothing original or epochal about the "four freedoms," nothing to justify Mr. Roosevelt likening himself to Moses and nothing resembling a practical solution of the great questions with which we soon must grapple. The absurdity of trying to force them on nations—including some of our Allies—who do not want them is apparent.

RED IN THE FACE

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 13.—It's an old story about the right letter in the wrong envelope, but it was just as embarrassing for a young soldier as when it first happened to Adam's grandson. The young man, formerly of Jamestown, recently wrote two letters, one addressed to a girl friend and another to a young man.

Imagine the soldier's dismay when the young man wrote back saying: "Darling—I had no idea you cherished me as you do."

ON OCTOBER 25, 1940—more than a year before Pearl Harbor—U. S. Army Air Corps officials notified us of the urgent need for a vastly increased aircraft production program, and invited us to participate.

Already we were making Army trucks in great number, completing a huge tank arsenal, building field ranges and tent heaters, and making our first studies of anti-aircraft gun manufacture.

Here was another urgent job that had to be tackled at once.

Without waiting to learn what aircraft job would be assigned to us, we provided 600,000 sq. ft. of additional plant space and, from our own personnel, began to select engineering, metallurgical and manufacturing specialists for this new work.

It was just three months after our first meeting with Air Corps officials that we were officially notified our job was to build the complete nose and center fuselage sections for medium bombers, —including installation of their complete mechanical and control systems.

We immediately sent forty of our technicians to a producing aircraft plant where these men did regular production work and observed, at first hand, the production methods then in use. Our long background in building automobiles and trucks, plus the experience these men gained working with an aircraft manufacturer, enabled us quickly to get under way with the necessary tools and equipment to turn out "bodies" for bombers by quantity production methods.

To help acquaint us in advance with the many kinds of material and operations involved, the Army Air Corps sent us a bomber nose section. Our engineers and master mechanics made intensive analyses of aircraft blueprints covering more than fourteen thousand structural parts.

The materials to be used included aluminum, steel, brass, bronze, plastics, plywood and fabrics. They would need to be forged, cast, stamped, machined, cut and fitted without the slightest error in their dimensions or relationship.

Many of the metal parts presented entirely new working characteristics. They required elaborate heat treating processes for the extreme stresses demanded of them. They also presented new problems in the design and use of the dies required to shape them.

Our production and purchasing specialists determined which parts we could subcontract to other companies. As the work progressed, orders for parts and materials were given to 2,255 subcontractors in 309 towns, in 29 states.

Aluminum forgings would be needed in large numbers by us and other manufacturers participating in the expanded aircraft production program. Therefore, we were given the job of building an aluminum forge plant to take care of these requirements. We also prepared at our foundry to produce aluminum castings required for plane manufacture.

Thousands of men and women had to be trained for this new type of work. We opened schools for the training of workers. Women were employed in large numbers and carefully taught drilling, riveting, machining and assembling of aircraft parts. Automobile sheet metal workers, body builders and trimmers were shown how to apply their skill and experience to the production of bomber parts.

The big nose of the bomber, which houses the Bombardier, Pilot, Co-Pilot, Navigator and Radio Operator is often called the "brain" of the ship. Nearly all the mechanical and electrical controls are here, while the center section immediately behind it provides the bomb carrying space.

If you could look within these sections as the work of assembly goes on, you would see a bewildering network of wires and tubing as well as the structural skeleton of the ship. Every one of these 1,963 separate wires and over 1,000 feet of tubes—to say nothing of all the control mechanisms—must operate faultlessly.

In the production of "bodies" for bombers—a new field to Chrysler Corporation—again is demonstrated how our experience in peacetime car and truck production now is being applied to the production of war equipment in quantity . . . and on time.

Stars Show At Pittsburgh Sells $87,000,000 Bonds

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 13.—Steel City residents saw stars last night, but it's U. S. Treasury department auditors who are blinking today at the astronomical figure of $87,000,000 raised through the sale of war bonds.

With Michael Benedum, famed "wildcatter" and millionaire oil man showing the way by purchasing a $1,000,000 bond, some 45,000 Pittsburghers jammed Forbes field last night to hear and see the Hollywood cavalcade of movie favorites put on a three-hour show.

The price of admission was a bond bought in conjunction with the third war loan drive. Seats were scaled from $25 to Benedum's million dollar third row, center."

The cavalcade included performances by Greer Garson, Kay Kyser, Judy Garland, Dick Powell, Lucille Ball and bumptious Betty Hutton, the jivin' jitterbug whose rendition of "murder, he says" was so good the michrophone went dead.

SEVENTH WARD

Ward Precincts Capture Honors

Tomorrow is another election day, and as usual the precinct boards of the Seventh ward will probably be the first to be heard from by The News, with any count of the ballots cast. The boards in the ward seem to have a speedier method of getting the county completed than other boards in the city, and Tuesday night will probably be no exception.

REPORT TURIN BATTLE SCENE

London Report Says Italians And Germans Battle For Possession Of City

(International News Service)

LONDON, Sept. 13 — German and Italian troops today were reported locked in a bitter battle for possession of the northern Italian industrial city of Turin.

The United Nations radio at Algiers, which reported the new flare-up of fighting, also said that fierce battles are raging between Italian and German troops in the hills north and south of the big port of Naples, where the American Fifth Army has established a wide bridgehead.

(U. S. government Monitors quoted the broadcast as reporting that Italian civilians had joined the battle for Turin and as saying "anti-German sentiment was sweeping Italy.")

The Swiss radio earlier said that troops under Nazi Field Marshall Erwin Rommel, one-time "Desert Fox" of Africa, now controls all of northern Italy as far south as Bologna.

The Italo-Swiss border town of Como was occupied by the German army during the night, said the broadcast.

South of the line running inland from the La Spezia naval base, Premier Pietro Bagolgio's Italian focres control the province of Tuscany, the greater part of Lazio and the Spruzze Mountains as far as the Naples region, said the broadcast. South of Naples, the territory is "occupied largely by the Allies," it added.

ALLIED AIRMEN HAMMER NAZI GROUND FORCES

a pulverizing attack on the Nazi-operated airdrome at Frosinone, about 48 miles northeast of Naples and approximately the same distance southeast of Rome.

American Mitchell medium bombers, led by RAF Bostons, poured bombs into the road junctions at Corleto, Auletta and Sapri, east of the Naples area, strafing several hundred enemy trucks.

Resume Attacks

At daybreak American Curtiss Warhawks and Invaders and RAF Baltimores resumed their attacks on enemy targets and continued them until sunset.

The same relentless air umbrella covered the Napolitania area day and night.

The Germans' sneak attempts to raid Allied ground and naval operations were forestalled by the vigilance of Allied fliers. The boldest attempt came when two Dornier bombers, escorted by Focke-Wulf 190's, swooped down toward Allied ships in the bay of Salerno. They were driven off by the combined action of naval fire and Spitfires. One Dornier was shot down.

Indicate Allied Nations Aim To March To Berlin

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—President Roosevelt today indicated that the allied goal in Europe is for the United Nations armies to march through Germany to Berlin before ending the present war.

In a birthday greeting to Gen. John J. Pershing, on his 83rd anniversary, the president today inferred that the allies had made a mistake in World War I in granting an armistice to Germany before the war was carried to the heart of Germany.

The president's message of greeting stated:

"Today brings it forcibly to mind that you wanted to go through to Berlin in 1918.

"Keep up the good work."

"With my affectionate regards.

"Franklin D. Roosevelt."

War Department Will Need Fifty Billions Next Year

Chairman Of House Military Affairs Subcommittee States Policy

By WILLIAM THEIS
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Rep. Snyder, (D) Pa., declared today that the war department probably will need 50 billion dollars next year in following a supply policy of "overabundance" which he said saved from 25,000 to 30,000 American lives in the North African campaign.

The policy Snyder said, was laid down by Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. chief of staff, who required that American forces have "everything we need, multiplied by two."

The 50 billion dollar figure may be raised or lowered by battle developments in coming months, the chairman of the House Military Appropriations subcommittee added.

But it was such fund provision as the 59 billion dollars in cash and 12 billion in unexpanded balances given the war department for the fiscal year which started last July 1, Snyder indicated, which made possible the slender African casualties.

"The fact that our losses in North Africa were so low," he said, "was due largely to our abundant supplies. Behind our lines we had more than enough reserve material of all sorts to keep the fighting lines going.

"This was due to the insistence of General Marshall, chief of staff, that before a big push is started, we should have on hand everything we need, multiplied by two."

In North Africa, Snyder said, Axis killed were "six times as large as ours, and their wounded twice as many."

Italian Warships May Battle Japs

Naval Men Believe They Are Suited For Pacific Warfare Use

By THOMAS S. TREANOR
Representing the Combined U. S. Press
(Distributed by International News Service)

VALETTA, Malta, Sept. 13.—The consensus among leading naval men in Malta is that the captured Italian warships are eminently suitable for war in the Pacific against the Japanese.

The stories that the Italian ships were only designed for short dashes about the Mediterranean and are unfitted for long cruises were overemphasized, British officers declared.

"That's the same old story that used to be passed around about the German fleet," said one officer. "You know how true that one was. These are good ships. Some of the battleships rate with the best in the world.

The principal immediate complication will be the ability of the ships to perform. It will be manning them and providing ammunition for them that may prove temporarily difficult. The Italian ships have guns of different caliber from the Allies' and no matter how heavily laden they may have been, it is not likely that they could have carried away enough ammunition to make them useful.

Before these ships can be used, manufacturing facilities for shells of their caliber must be provided. Perhaps such facilities already have been made, in anticipation that one day such an emergency would arise.

MAYBERRY FOR MAYOR

TO THOSE WHOSE VOTES ARE NOT FOR SALE AND WHO CONTROL THEIR OWN VOTES:

I have lived in New Castle longer than any other candidate for this office.

I believe the business experience gained by the successful operation of my own business and the knowledge of making of a budget and meeting a payroll of over 1,000 people, also my record of 10 years as a city employe, would be of value to the taxpayers in the office of Mayor.

I believe the Mayor, being the head of the police department, should be under no obligations to any clique or faction. And I am not.

I believe that it would be a mistake in making up a budget for New Castle next year to shift the $22,500.00 Mercantile Tax from utilities, chain stores and out-of-town concerns to the local property owners.

The only candidate for this office that dared give you facts and figures that you should know while running for this office would be the likely candidate if elected to continue to give you facts and figures.

The "bally-hoo" of professional politicians whose voice as well as their vote is for sale that a candidate "doesn't have a chance to win" should have no effect on decent citizens. Any candidate qualified and honest has a chance if you and your friends are not indifferent to the election.

The third, sixth, seventh and eighth wards are not represented in the city building or court house, and only one each from the first and fourth wards. Why not equalize the representation by electing a man from the third ward?

In closing I wish to thank the friends who have supported my candidacy, and wish to assure them that the confidence they placed in me is not misplaced, and if elected, the office of Mayor will be in the city building.

Thanks,
JAMES MAYBERRY

Attention Voters!

The campaign for the office of City Councilman is about over. My former buddies, Veterans of World War 1, have urged me to mention the fact that I am a veteran.

I enlisted at Fort Slocum, N. Y., Feb. 13, 1915, as a buck private to serve on the Mexican Border. From the Mexican Border I was transferred to the Philippine Islands and received a commission as 1st Lieut. in the U. S. Infantry and served as Military Intelligence Officer and many other important posts which are on army record. I received an honorable discharge from the army May 28, 1919, at San Francisco, California, signed by Major General Morrison.

Again I wish to extend my heartfelt thanks to my friends and also appreciate the fairness and sportsmanship shown by my opponents.

CHARLES L. REESE

Candidate For City Council

(Political Advertisement)

The Citizens of New Castle Have Always Shown That They Prefer INDEPENDENCE and FAIR-PLAY In Their ELECTIONS!

Many persons have received a letter today from certain city officials endorsing the candidacy of one man for mayor. We do not believe that the voters will approve of this last-minute attempt to gain support. The citizens of New Castle are capable of determining by themselves who should represent them in our city government without the guiding hand of any public officials. Under our democratic system of government, public officials should be prepared to work unprejudiced with whoever may be selected by the people.

We wonder why the "Organization" is so anxious to obtain the defeat of Mr. McKibben for Mayor. Is it because he has always been an independent candidate and cannot be "bossed"?

We all know that in the heat of campaigns many things are said and many rumors are circulated which have no foundation whatever. These rumors generally do not come from other candidates themselves, but from their more-excitable and less-responsible followers; however, they are invariably directed at the leading candidate. We believe that the fair-minded voters will not be misled in this manner.

YOU CAN COUNT ON McKIBBEN

BRITISH TROOPS CAPTURE PORT CITY OF CROTONE

miles against only weak opposition from German rearguard units who rely on large-scale demolitions to check the Eighth Army's thrust.

Valuable Harbor

Crotone with a population of some 22,000, is the site of a valuable harbor—often bombed by the Allies in previous weeks—and is an airport and rail center. It also contains an important chemical works.

Like Taranto and Brindisi, where the British today are consolidating their positions, Crotone fell in good condition, its best facilities ready to be turned against the Germans.

In the Salerno region, however, Nazi troops fought back in desperation to check the Fifth army's advance, battling with every available ounce of firepower for each inch of grimly-yielded soil.

Unofficial reports declared that the Americans drove a steel wedge six miles inland to the very outskirts of Battipaglia, but there was no immediate confirmation at Allied headquarters.

British forces pounding forward across southern Italy were limited in the speed of their advance only by the ability of their supply columns to keep pace with them. Nazi rearguards, hurtling northward in a race to reach their main bodies of troops before the mainland is cut in two, put up but token resistance. Extensive demolitions were carried out, however, and hindered slightly the British advance.

Move Ahead

North of the captured naval base of Taranto the British moved ahead without interruption, pouring men and supplies ashore through a series of beachheads which were being widened steadily.

"The build-up of our forces is proceeding rapidly and they have pushed back the small German forces met," Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's communique said in describing the operations in this sector.

(The British radio was heard by NBC in New York reporting that Eighth Army troops occupied Altamura, 40 miles northwest of Taranto.)

The big Nazi airdrome at Frosinone, mid-way between Naples and Rome, was blasted by American heavy bombers in a crippling attack aimed at putting out of commission one of the main bases for enemy aircraft. Targets in the Salerno battle zone and the town of Carleto, Auretta and Sapri in southern Italy also were rocked in heavy assaults.

Jittery Axis officers kept their attention riveted on the Salerno region, where the Allies were pushing inland despite all attempts to check them, and on Brindisi.

Possible Balkans Attack

Occupation of Brindisi gave the Allies a jumping-off base for possible amphibious operations against the Balkans and placed under Allied control all of the heel of the Italian boot.

(An Algiers broadcast said the British also captured the port of Bari which, with Brindisi, forms the main Adriatic outlets to Albania and Greece.

(The Swedish newspaper Allehanda meanwhile said Berlin expects a new Allied landing on the Gulf of Genoa, in northwestern Italy, "at any time."

(On the American Fifth Army front at Salerno, the Yanks were revealed to have extended their bridgehead at least 24 miles southeast of Salerno. This extension was disclosed in a dispatch from Herbert L. Matthews, representing the combined American press, who reported the establishment of Allied posts between "the temples of Neptune and Ceres." Although Matthews did not identify the town by name, mention of the famed Greek temples revealed the bridgehead had been widened to include Paestum, 24 miles below Salerno.

Complete Toe Occupation

The British Eighth Army meanwhile completed occupation of Italy's toe by seizing San Eufemia Lamenzia, at the northern tip of the Gulf of San Eufemia, and the key communications center of Catanzaro. The latter rail and road hub lies 80 miles northeast of Reggio Di Calabria, where Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's troop first landed on the Italian mainland ten days ago.

The bitterest fighting of the Italian compaign raged on the coastal plain outside Salerno, 30 miles southeast of Naples. Here Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American and British troops beat down repeated counter-attacks by a veteran Nazi armored division and nudged steadily inland.

The Germans threw some 120 planes into a great air battle over Salerno Saturday in an attempt to stem the Allied advance on Naples, Italy's largest port. Outnumbered American fighters downed at least nine of the attackers and routed the others in what was declared to be the heaviest air engagement yet waged over the Italian mainland.

American flying fortresses meanwhile paced a furious Allied air campaign that smashd rail and road junctions within a 60-mile radius of Naples and halted German reinforcement and supply convoys heading for the battle area.

flanking the defenses of Bryansk, crashed forward west and southwest of Bakhmach toward the important railroad junctions of Priluki and Nezhin and reached points 80 miles northeast of Kiev, Ukrainian capital and Nazi stronghold on the middle Dnieper river.

The Soviets army approaching Priluki overran 70 towns and villages in the last 24 hours, including Gaydach, where 1,000 Germans were slain.

Repulse Counter-attacks

To the northwest, the Russian column aimed at Nezhin, last major junction on the Moscow railroad to Kiev, repulsed several German counterattacks, killed 800 Nazis and enveloped 20 towns and villages in advances of from six to seven and one-half miles.

Northwest of Bryansk, another Russian column drove forward three and one-half to five miles, seized 60 populated places and approached within 15 miles of the important railroad town of Roslavl, midway between Bryansk and Smolensk. Capture of Roslavl would cut off Bryansk from the rear.

On the southern front, more than 50 populated places were captured by Russian forces which advanced from six to 20 miles west and southwest of liberated Stalino.

The Soviet high command said German forces east of Pavlograd, which is only 23 miles from the Dnieper, were 'retreating in disorder' before the Red army's steamroller advance.

Hitler is getting desperate. He is giving the highest places to sadists who can be trusted to kill Germans as they butchered other civilians.

ent campaign of bond sales. He asked that every man and woman present have a part in the campaign by purchasing bonds.

The dedication service was opened with the invocation by Rev. Fr. Albert Inteso, assistant pastor of St. Vitus church. Following the invocation the senior high school band played the "Star Spangled Banner", directed by Joe F. Replogle. Ivor V. Davis, chairman of the program committee, spoke briefly and introduced the master-of-ceremonies of the day, Councilman D. O. Davies.

Board of Trade Represented

Joseph J. Frengle, president of the South Side Board of Trade, brought greetings from that organization, the organization that sponsored the erection of the honor roll.

Musical features included two choral selections by the Daughters of Kosciusko, and an accordion solo by Josephine Masi. The crowd sang "God Bless America", the benediction was pronounced by Rev. James N. Rainey, pastor of the Central Christian church and the dedication was over.

The board is a handsome one and is arranged with a huge 'V' in the center. Names of over 600 men from the South Side are already in the panels on each side of the "V", while inside the "V" are the names of South Side men who have given their lives in service.

The unveiling of the board was done by Fred Duff, commander of Post 343, American Legion. Assisting him was an honor guard from the Legion.

Atop the board is a huge bronze eagle; flanking the board are two bombs, while for decoration there is a plot of evergreens and a white picket fence. It is an attractive board, one of which the South Side can well be proud.

Demands France Be Given Place At Peace Table

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Gen. Charles DeGaulle, co-chairman of the French Committee of National Liberation, was quoted as demanding for France her "rightful place" at the peace table.

The general's new bid for Allied recognition of the French committee in dealing with a defeated enemy was contained in a speech made at Oran, broadcast by the Algiers radio and recorded by U. S. government monitors.

In an obvious indirect protest against exclusion of the liberation committee from negotiations which led to the surrender of Italy, DeGaulle declared France would seek to "take part, in the rank due to her, in a progressive settling up of the conflict and the reconstruction of the world."

"If our country has decided to play to the full, despite all its misfortunes, its part in the concert of the great United Nations," he said, "it is not only because it feels itself worthy and capable of such a part but also because it has ascertained in the course of a long and strenuous history to what extent the existence of solidarity between nations of goodwill is essential.

"Between these nations, there exists interdependence, and it is on account of this that they must all carefully look after the vital interests and dignity of others."

Police Conference Here On Thursday

Third FBI quarterly police conference will be held in city hall Thursday afternoon, with Mayor Charles B. Mayne and Police Chief W. G. McMullen the welcoming hosts. Judge W. Walter Braham will address the conference on "Civic assistance to and co-operation with law enforcement".

An unreleased and exceptional sound film will depict in most accurate detail events leading up to most recent action in various theaters of war.

William E. Stuart, chief of police of Sharon, will discuss technique in a most interesting case with exhibits being displayed.

H. K. Johnson, special agent in charge of the Pittsburgh FBI office, will lead a discussion on the handling of fugitive cases. An interesting case discussion with visual aids will be led by a FBI representative on an interesting internal security case, showing how all law enforcement agencies can and do co-operate in such cases.

Penicillin Aids Woman's Recovery

Free from the dread infection of of hemolytic streptococcus septicemia, Mrs. Roger E. Francis, of 1027 Beckford street, has been removed to her home from the Jameson Memorial hospital and seems to be on the high road to complete recovery.

Her condition for a time was critical. A small supply of penicillin was secured and the "magic drug" did its work well. Mrs. Francis is resting at home but is sufficiently well to be up and around the house most of the day. Her recovery is a source of gratification to her many friends.

Luxury Buying After War May Cause Inflation

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—A warning of the possibility of a post-war inflation—due in part to a splurge in luxury buying—was sounded at the 69th annual convention of the American Bankers Association Monday.

O. M. W. Sprague professor of banking and finance at Harvard University, told the group that a large fraction of the government securities being issued during the present war "contain security for their redemption at par on demand."

"Here we have the purchasing power for an intense demand for a war greater quantity of civilian goods and services than will be available for many months after the return of peace," said Professor Sprague.

"Patriotic retraints will be weaker than now and it may be anticipated that people will feel an almost irresistable urge to supply themselves with comforts and luxuries which they have been fairly willing to go without during the conflict itself.

"Inflation, if it comes, will be initiated and carried far by the demand of consumers."

Reviewing methods of holding inflationary tendencies in leash, the Harvard economist found price controls as the only practical means.

Noted German Sub Commander Is Now Prisoner

By JACK VINCENT
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The navy announced today the capture of the German U-boat commander who is credited with sinking the British aircraft carrier Ark Royal.

The capture followed a running gun battle between naval plane and the U-boat off the coast of Brazil.

The Nazi officer is Kapitan Leutenant Friederich Guggenberger, one of the most famous of all of the Nazi U-boat commanders, the navy said. Guggenberger and six members of his crew are now prisoners of war.

A navy Martin patrol bomber spotted the submarine off the coast of Brazil. Guggenberger elected to keep his craft on the surface and tried to shoot down the American plane with heavy anti-aircraft fire, but the patrol bomber sunk the sub in its first run of the U-boat.

Coal Production Again Declines

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Solid Fuels Administrator Harold L. Ickes today reported further declines in the production of both anthracite and bituminous coal last week. He reiterated the necessity for strict fuel conservation.

The production of anthracite last week was estimated at 1,250,000 tons as compared with 1,296,000 tons for the previous week. Bituminous output totalled 12,050,000 against 12,130,000 tons a week earlier.

ALBERT A. HOYLAND

CANDIDATE FOR

CITY COUNCIL

Planning is a very necessary part of municipal operation. The present prosperous condition of our community is evidence of this fact.

Pay rolls are the life blood of a community. When our people are gainfully employed, the economic position of the community is good, for the resultant pay rolls beneficially affect all parts of the community.

Planning was necessary to secure our rightful share in the present, and more planning will be necessary to retain our economic position in the future and when the war ends. Intelligent cooperation of the entire body with the several civic organizations engaged in post-war planning would be essential.

The record of our individual cooperation in the past is open for inspection. If the voters can place their confidence in me by returning me to the councilmanic body, I pledge in the future, as in the past, the most active cooperation in advancing the economic welfare of the City.

The problems which we shall face are many and varied. The time for the performance of necessary public works will be immediately after the war, plans should be set on foot even at this time, blue prints and specifications should be prepared for those improvements which can be made within the limits of the City. Resurfacing and paving of many of our streets will be necessary, both the storm sewer and sanitary sewer systems are in need of major improvements, and all of these things should and can be done by intelligent, experienced planning, and will receive my wholehearted support.

During the time covered by my appointment to the councilmanic body, employment in the City has possibly doubled. It's a source of satisfaction to me, as a citizen and a member of the municipal council, to have had a part in this development. Experience in municipal affairs is as important as experience in industry. It will require experienced management and the utmost cooperation in all branches of our community life to retain, after the war, those gains which our mutual cooperation has made possible.

Northern Kuriles Again Bombed Is Japanese Report

(International News Service)

LONDON, Sept. 13—The Japanese Domei Agency reported today that 18 American bombers attacked installations in the northern Kuriles yesterday.

Eight of the raiders were alleged to have been shot down during the attack, specific target of which was not revealed. The great Japanese naval and air base at Paramushira, 800 miles west of the Aleutian Island of Kiska and 1,200 miles northeast of Tokyo is located in the northern Kuriles.

The Japanese dispatch admitted two transport ships were set afire and claimed "extremely slight" damage was inflicted on land installations.

Domei also conceded the loss of one Japanese plane, but asserted it was destroyed when its pilot "boldly crash-dived into an enemy plane."

The dispatch did not identify the type of the American bombers that carried out the assault, but is was presumed that heavy bombers based in the Aleutians negotiated the round-trip flight of at least 1,600 miles to rain their explosives on installations on installations guarding the northern approach to Japan itself.

MORE FARM HELP IS NEEDED NOW

Vegetable Pickers And Silo Fillers Are Wanted By Farm Labor Office

With Jack Frost getting in his licks earlier than usual this year, Lawrence county farmers and truckers are urgently in need of help, particularly this week.

One of the biggest vegetable growers in the county has a huge field of beans ready to pick, the frost just nipping the tops of the plants, and pickers will be needed all this week to harvest this crop and keep it from spoiling. These workers will be transported to the fields by the grower. Students who can help after school hours are asked to apply and help the war effort by preventing this big crop from going to waste.

In addition, silo fillers are needed this week. These must be men who can put in a day or half day doing some fairly heavy work. The frost damaged this corn and it must be put into the silos this week. Any person willing to help out with this silo filling, or bean and vegetable harvesting, is asked to enroll with the Farm Labor Office in the Penn Power company building, or by calling the office, phone 7526.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The London radio today reported violent fighting between Germans and Italians at the Albanian port of Durazzo and said all Italian naval units in the vicinity have been scuttled.

MASKED MARVEL MURDER VICTIM

Movie Actor Dies In Mysterious Stabbing Attack In California

(International News Service)

VENICE, Calif., Sept. 13.—The "masked marvel" of the movies—David Gaspar C. Bacon—was dead today, murdered under circumstances as mysterious as any film plot he ever played.

The actor, son of Major and Mrs. Gaspar G. Bacon of Dedham, Mass., died of a single stab wound in the back moments after his light, British-made automobile lurched aimlessly from side to side on Washington boulevard and plunged into a bean field Sunday.

A search was instituted at once for a black-haired man in a dark coat, reported to have been seen in the small car with the 28-year-old Bacon a few minutes earlier.

Bacon, believed returning from a trip to the beach, was clad only in blue trunks as he staggered from the car, blood streaming from the fatal wound in his back.

"Please help me," the screen's "masked marvel" whispered pleadingly to Wayne Powell, who reached Bacon moments before the actor died.

The sin of pride is in giving you the idea that wrong isn't bad when done by such a high class person.

Hull Outlines World Program

Six Point American Plan For Better World Is Presented

By KINGSBURY SMITH
(1. N. S Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 — A six point American government plan for a better world order today was being proclaimed to mankind.

The six rules of conduct for a sane society of nations after the war were advanced by Secretary of State Cordell Hull in a radio speech last night.

In one of the most momentous declarations of American war and peace aims ever made by the secretary of state, Hull outlined this government's proposed rules of conduct for relations between nations as follows:

"1. All people who, with a "decent respect to the opinions of mankind," have qualified themselves to assume and to discharge the responsibilities of liberty are entitled to its enjoyment:

"2. Each sovereign nation, large or small, is in law and under law the equal of every other nation;

"3. All nations, large and small, which respect the right of others, are entitled to freedom from outside interference in their internal affairs;

"4. Willingness to settle international disputes by peaceful means, acceptance of international law and observance of its principles are the basis of order among nations;

"5. None-discrimination in economic opportunity, and treatment;

"6. Cooperation between nations in the spirit of good neighbors, founded on the principles of liberty, equality, justice, morality and law."

International Relations

Asserting that "vigorous participation in efforts to establish a system of international relations based on these rules of conduct . . . is and must be a fundamental feature of our foreign policy," Hull said that in their acceptance and application by all peacefully inclined nations "lies the greatest hope of security, happiness and progress for this country and for all countries."

Expressing the belief that the United States intends to participate in an international security system after the war, Hull said it is "abundantly clear" that the cooperating nations must be prepared to "use force, if necessary, to keep the peace."

To be able to carry out the proposed six rules of conduct, Hull said nations should be willing to accept the following three fundemental propositions:

1. Each nation should maintain a stable government, and be free to decide for itself the forms and details of its governmental organization so long as it conducts its affairs in such a way as not to menace the peace and security of other nations.

2. Each nation should be free to decide for itself the forms of its internal economic and social organization—but it should conduct its affairs in such a way as to respect the rights of others, and to play its necessary part in a system of sound international economic relations.

3. Each nation should be willing to submit differences arising between it and other nations to processes of peaceful settlement, and should be prepared to carry out other obligations that may devolve upon it in an effective system of organized peace.

Food Rationing Causes Hershey To Omit Dinner

(International News Service)

HERSHEY, Pa., Sept. 13.—M. S. Hershey, chocolate king philanthropist who founded Hershey, Pa., reached his 86th birthday today and bowed to food rationing in not giving a dinner which has been his annual custom since he was 80.

Thousands in his community were feted in the last five dinners and parties given by the multi-millionaire builder of the world's largest chocolate and cocoa plant and the first American to grow and refine sugar in Cuba.

The chocolate magnate has devoted his fortune to the care and education of orphan boys, and as chairman of the board of directors of the Hershey industrial school he bought $1,500,000 in war bonds for the institution's account on the opening of the third war loan drive.

The school has graduated nearly 900 students in its 34 years and has a service honor roll of 473 graduates. In 1938 Hershey opened the first free junior college in Pennsylvania.

The octogenerian said he intends to spend the day at work and planning for the future. Since his 75th birthday he has launched numerous enterprises in his community including the erection of a hotel, a sports arena, a stadium with a 15,000 seating capacity, and a school building for 1,500 pupils.

Pittsburgh Director Points Out Jobs May Be Lost After Few Months

(International News Service)

PITTSBURCH, Sept. 13. — Factory whistles shirlled louder than school bells this fall for many Pittsburgh district boys and girls.

As many as 2,500 children in the 16 and 17-year-old age groups are not enrolled for the opening of the fall term, E. R. Carson, director of the department of compulsory attendance of public education, estimated. He reported that 2,216 boys and girls were registered as employed.

Carson stated it was impossible to make a specific estimate of the number of high school boys and girls who will ask to have their vacation employment certificates changed to general employment certificates for work during school hours.

"Any child can get a job today," the school board official said, "but it is good counseling to remind children that by staying in school now, they will acquire the educational assets which will be demanded by employers three or four years from now—just as these same assets were required when jobs were scarce before the war."

Another factor involved in the dilemma of choosing the factory or the school, Carson pointed out, is the possibility that after a month or two of work in war industries this fall, a sizeable number of children may lose their jobs at such a late date that they will be unable to catch up in class work.

HOMEMADE SAUERKRAUT FOR WINTER MEALS

Making some of that surplus cabbage into sauerkraut not only saves the cabbage but also will add variety to next winter's meals.

To make sauerkraut, select firm, well-ripened heads of cabbage says Miss Josephine Simpson, home economics extension representative, Lawrence County. Allow the heads to stand a day at room temperature so the cabbage will lose some of its crispness. This means the cabbage will cut without breaking too much and pack more easily.

Shred cabbage the thickness of a dime. Put it into a clean crock or keg, using a 3 to 4 inch layer of cabbage and a layer of salt. Pack the cabbage firmly but do not bruise. Packing is done to remove the air, not to press out any juice. A bottle makes a satisfactory masher. Use a half cup of plain salt to each 10 pounds of cabbage.

When the crock or keg is full, cover the cabbage with a clean cloth and a plate turned upside down. On the plate put a weight that is heavy enough to keep the cabbage under the brine that is formed. Keep the cloth inside the crock or keg to prevent loss of liquid. Put the crock or keg in a warm place, 70 to 86 degrees Fehrenheit, and allow the cabbage to ferment. This will take 10 days to 3 weeks, depending on the temperature. Fermentation is complete when the bubbling stops.

At the end of the fermentation period, the kraut may be packed into glass jars and processed in the boiling water bath. Process pint jars 25 minutes and quart jars 30 minutes. This processing insures the correct flavor and prevents spoilage. However, if the crock or keg can be stored in a cool place, the kraut may be left in it.

If only a small amount is wanted, it may be made in glass jars, explains Miss Simpson. Shred the cabbage, pack it into quart jars, using 1 teaspoon of salt to each jar. Force a knife or spatula down through the center of the jars and fill with boiling water to cover the cabbage, allowing it to work through the cabbage. Place rubbers and covers on jars and screw lids on loosely. Set jars in an enamel pan and put in a warm place to ferment. Every two or three days pour the liquid back into the jars. Bubbling will cease when fermentation is complete. Tap jars to remove air bubbles, then seal. It is not necessary to process the jars if a cool storage space is available.

Miss Simpson gives the following reasons for spoilage in kraut: 1, if not enough salt is used; 2, if the cabbage is not well-packed; 3, if any of the juice is drained off; 4, if the crock or jar is not covered properly. Spoiled kraut has an off color and flavor and may have a poor texture.

GLASS

The world took a long stride forward when glass was invented.

Houses were made so much more comfortable and convenient. Instead of being dark and dingy, they became light and cheerful.

There is one thing to remember about glass windows. Ultra violet rays will not go through window glass.

Noon time is the only time for violet rays. A person must be in the open air to get them.

They are absorbed by the skin and stored away for future use.

Children need lots of violet rays and vitamin D They go together. When they get noon time sunshine they get vitamin D.

When the sun is directly over head is the best time to get the rays. About a half hour at high noon is the only time.

Somebody is guilty of the crime. If the acquitted man is really innocent, why doesn't the law keep hunting for the one who did it?

AMERICA is proud of the way you answered her call for help. In the First and Second War Loan Drives you opened your hearts—and your purses—and invested generously.

Today, everyone who possibly can, must invest in at least one extra $100 War Bond. More if you possibly can. That's in addition to your regular War Bond subscriptions.

Can you look into your heart and say to them, "I've done all I can"?

Can you tell that to the Invasion Troops?

Of course you can't! No true American could! So NOW . . . when America needs your help as it never has in all history . . . make up your mind to do MORE in September. Invest in the safest way in the world! Invest out of current income, out of idle or accumulated funds. Back the invasion with at least one extra $100 War Bond this month.

FOR CONSTABLE 2nd WARD

I have not lived in the second ward thirty-five years, only twenty-five years. But, I have helped make the ward the best residential ward in the city as well as the largest business district. Having had erected therein and owning some ten or twelve fine residences, which meant paying a large sum in taxes. I am now a candidate for constable on the Republican ticket and if nominated and elected I will serve out the full term (the Good Master above permitting) and the much younger man can give no other assurance. While I am a man of matured age I am physically able and, think qualified with the experience I have had pertaining to the office, to perform all the duties pertaining thereto.

As I have said before, If I was young enough to secure employment in a defense plant I would be there doing my patriotic duty as I did in the last two wars. So now if my friends and the voters of the ward think me worthy, qualified and capable . . . . I respectively ask your support and vote tomorrow, September 14th.

THANK YOU

Yankees Closer To A. L. Crown, Top Bosox Twice

Cleveland Hangs On To Second Place, Spills Tigers, 2-1; Bucs-Reds Split

By JOHN CASHMAN
(International News Service Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—With the "standing room only" sign already being trundled up to the New York Yankees' ticket windows in anticipation of the impending world series, it's up to the Yankees to support their great advance ticket sales with consistent winning play. And, in the tradition of those mechanical pennant-winners, they are doing just that.

The Boston Red Sox bowed to the Yankees for the fifth straight time yesterday when the New Yorkers, leaping in for the American league knockout, smothered the hapless Bostonians in both ends of a twin bill, 1 to 0 and 9 to 6.

Bonham's 13th Win

Ernie Bonham bested Joe Dobson in the opening pitching duel, and knocked in the run which gave him his 13th victory. In the nightcap, the Yankees covered the field under a blanket of 17 hits against Pinky Woods and Yank Terry.

Although the Cleveland Indians retained second place, which has been subjected to a terrific kicking around, by beating the Detroit Tigers, 2 to 1, they are still only five percentage points ahead of the Washington Senators.

The Tigers closed their home season by dropping the fourth straight to Cleveland. Victory came in the ninth when Manager Lou Boudreau's long fly scored Mickey Rocco, who had tripled. Tommy Bridges was the loser although he yielded only four hits.

The Senators kept in the running for second place by taking over the Philadelphia Athletics in both ends of a double feature, 4 to 3 and 9 to 5.

Browns Grab Two

The St. Louis Browns swept both ends of a double-header with the Chicago White Sox, 2 to 0 and 6 to 2. While the White Sox were being held to four hits by Muncrief in the opener, the Brownies slapped out eight safeties and staged a game-winning two-run rally in the seventh inning. Galehouse checked the Sox to seven hits in the nightcap, and the Brownies went to town at the plate, collecting a total of 16 safeties.

Although the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals could not test their power, their twin bill with the Chicago Cubs being postponed, the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers gained a firmer hold on that niche with a killing over the Philadelphia Phillies, 8 to 4. The victory, which closes out the Brooklyn home season, was attained with a six-run seventh-inning rally.

The New York Giants stirred around in their cellar a bit, and came up with twin victories over the Boston Braves, 3 to 0 and 7 to 2.

Elmer Riddle pitched an almost perfect game in leading the Cincinnati Reds to a 1 to 0 opening victory. The Pirates took the nightcap, 7 to 0. Riddle allowed only one hit, a double by Bob Elliott in the eighth inning. In pitching his 19th victory, and retired 22 batters in succession. "Rip" Sewell lost the opener.

Majors See End Of Travel Edict By Next Spring

Several Eastern Clubs Eyeing Possible Sites In South And Southwest Sectors

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(International News Service Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, Sept. 13. — Officially, you probably couldn't get baseball to admit right now that the earth is round, without first getting confirmation from Washington, but in a strictly confidential sense most of the major league clubs are understood to be looking for the ODT to take the bowser off its travel restrictions for purposes of spring training in 1944. In point of fact, the ODT might as well.

Apparently the only people in America it has ever stopped from traveling are the 16 clubs which, at the stern ukase of Judge Landis, hurriedly sought training quarters last spring somewhere just outside the city limits.

Travel Rate High

Otherwise, everybody promptly took up the T-formation or the man-in-motion, with the result that the recent Labor Day week end showed travel 15 per cent higher than it had been for the corresponding week end of 1942—regarded as an alarming figure at the time. As a symptom, this presents a reasonably concise account of what usually takes places when the American public is told what it must not do.

During prohibition, for example, it was told that it mustn't drink. So everybody took umbrage (as Mister Tunney one said) and went roaring in maudlin self-determination down the middle of the street, swigging out of bottles marked nux vomica and creosote. This time, they were told not to travel.

So everybody hit the rails, and has been sliding around on a zipper ever since. Most of them, of course, have business. . . of a sort.

Clubs Have Business

But so have the ball clubs . . . of a sort; and if they set out to conduct it at a distance, instead of somewhere in the suburbs, they wouldn't and couldn't add very greatly to the general disorder. In fact, nothing could affect that, adversely or otherwise; not even if all the ball clubs, from the day of Captain Adrain C. Anson on down, suddenly took to the road and began driving up and down the rails in hansom cabs.

Anyhow, we know of several eastern clubs who are quietly eyeing possible sites in the south and southwest. And that the Cubs and White Sox have every hope—and, indeed, intention—of going back to California next spring

SPORTS RAMBLINGS

Monday Wash:---

Ever since one of the press services sent an item over the wires . . . Agnes Rifner, who is pretty, blonde and 16, also is adept at kicking a football—good enough to land a job on the New Castle high school grid team . . . this scribbler has been busy explaining. The institution bearing the same name as our 'Canes hails from Indiana. Anyhow, NC (Pa.) hasn't been socked hard enough yet to yell for help from the skirt division . . . .

Sammy Ciccone, whose two brothers, Benny and Willie, are nationally known in grid circles, will be eligible to play with Ne-Ca-Hi October 10. The good looking center fell behind last fall, scholastically . . . He "spotted" for me and did an excellent job . . . The guy at the "mike", in the press coop, by the way, is Vern Carr, 1-A all around . . . .

Pvt. Tony Razzano's grid mates are going to give him something to remember them by. After the Beaver Falls tilt Friday, Razzano's last for the duration, the 'Canes will hand the well-liked athlete a valuable wrist watch. It couldn't happen to a much nicer guy and about as sweet as they come in athletics . . . .

"Bill" Labor, Grove City halfback hurt in the second quarter, probably won't play for the rest of the season. He sustained a possible cracked left foot . . . The inaugural, incidentally was so clean that the whistle blowers meted out but four penalties, three of 'em offsiders. The rivals played the entire first half without violating any of the rules . . . .

Two Cleveland golfers recently approached the fifth hole and each pulled out his No. 9 iron. Joe Corrigan fired first over a tree on the 90-yard par three hole and scored a hole in one. Phil Kerrigan followed with a nice shot. And, as you probably already have guessed, he, too, got a hole-in-one! . . . .

Oh well dept: An Illinois U. contrib. states that Gene Vance and Andy Phillip, basketball stars, are out for baseball. Already for next season? . . . Army hasn't beaten Notre Dame since 1931 and hasn't scored since 1938 and the photo-finish camera used by NY tracks nabs about 37 dead heats a year . . . .

South Enders Rally, Nip Moose Club, 7-6, To Garner '43 Title

"Hank" Koszela's Ninth Frame Single Ends Series On Sunday Afternoon

Trailing in the bottom half of the ninth, the Lawrence Indies manufactured a pair of runs to eke out a 7-6 triumph over the Moose club, Sunday afternoon on Mahoning field. The outcome netted Manager George "Hoss" Zidow's well-balanced aggregation the 1943 championship of the City Baseball league.

Mosley led off in the ninth for the Indies by lifting a triple. He scored a moment later on "Gabby" Kendra's double down the right field foul line, deadlocking the count, 6-6.

Kendra Is Trapped

Wilk grounded to third and Kendra was trapped between third and home, Wilk journeying to second while Kendra was being tagged out. "Hank" Koszela ended the series by smacking a single into right field, Wilk crossing the plate.

The Indies, who succeed Ellwood City as champs, sped away to a 5-0 lead by the third, only to see the Rodenbaughmen rally and go ahead, 6-5, in the eighth. Bevan scored the first Moose run by blasting a homer in the fourth. After garnering another tally in the fifth, the Moose pushed across deuces in the seventh and eighth to forge to the front.

Rainey Hit Hard

"Monk" Rainey, the victorious twirler, was on the liberal side as he dished up a dozen hits. The Indies bounced on their jinx, "Lefty" Ferrante, for 10 blows.

Kendra and Ferrante doubled for the Indies. Knight, Bevan, Thomas, Smiley and Ferrante led the Moose plate attack.

The Indies snared the crown by winning the first, third and fourth tiffs of the five-game series.

Zidows' outfit bagged the first half crown to earn a series ticket.

Steagles Exhibit Power In Opener

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 13.—The surprisingly strong Philadelphia-Pittsburgh Steagles leave for the Quaker City tonight for their charity game with the Chicago Bears Thursday after dropping a bitter exhibition battle to the Green Bay Packers over the week-end.

Co-Coaches Greasy Neale and Walt Kiesling expressed general satisfaction at the performances of their hirelings Saturday night, although the Steagles ended up on the short side of a 28-10 score.

The two-city pro grid team showed a strong running attack based on the T-formation, but proved to be weak on pass defense. On several occasions a promising Steagle ground offensive sputtered in pay dirt after going the length of the field.

The enterprising Packers, led by irrepressible Don Hutson, would then uncork long touchdown heaves to nullify the ground gained by the Steagles.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Beaten in his last three starts, Apache tied Whirlaway's Aqueduct record for a mile and one-eighth, capturing the $10,000 Edgemere handicap in 1:49 2-5 seconds Saturday. The winner paid $7.60. Shut Out was second and Market Wise third.

Quick Pickups

By LAWTON CARVER
INS Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Quick pickups: One of the big thrills of the coming football season will be to see Bronko Nagurski in action again. "He is the only man I ever saw who runs his own interference," is the famous line that the greatest of the Chicago Bears inspired Coach Steve Owen of the New York Giants to spill with lavish praise one day.

One of baseball's most heated debates of the moment centers around whether the Detroit Tigers' Dick Wakefield or the New York Yankees' Bill Johnson is the outstanding rookie of the year. . . . Connie Mack says Johnson has an edge . . . It's close to a tossup between the two of them if you throw out the important fact that Johnson is with a pennant-winning club.

Wensloff In Race

Others in the race for the rookie honors include Guy Curtwright of the Chicago White Sox, Charlie Wensloff of the New York Yankees and one or two others, but apparently they all must finish behind Wakefield and Johnson . . . the two real standouts.

The most valuable players in the two circuits are likely to be Spud Chandler, the Yankees' leading pitcher, or Luke Appling, the Chicago White Sox hitting star, in the American league, and Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals, in the National. . . . The American league now has 165 players in the armed services, or 21 more than entered World War No. 1.

Tpparently Joe Louis and Billy Conn must permanently remain the apple of promotional eyes. . . Latest example: Cleveland promoters offer $50,000 to war benefit if the war department will permit Conn to meet the winner of a Jimmy Bivins-Melio Bettina bout—or is this merely cheap publicity?

Poom Year Here

Speaking of professional football, as some are at this time, the good old cash-and-carry pigskin business is going to have one of its greatest seasons despite a shortage of talent and curtailment of travel accommodations. . . The point is, the football addict will be deprived of many college gridiron tidbits and will have to turn to the professionals for his thrills.

TANK TO POOL

Workmen have converted a huge water-stoppage tank, considered a flight hazard at Camp Kearney (Calif), into a fine swimming pool by simply trimming all but the bottom eight feet off the big container. Clorinating equipment and dressing rooms were added and the pool was ready for business.—Source: San Diego Marine Corps "Chevron".

GET PHYSICAL TESTS

Quarterly tests in physical fitness now are given all personnel in the Army Air Forces. The results go on the fliers' service records and are consulted in analyzing speed, distance running, muscular strength, agility, co-ordination and flexibility of each man.

WON'T BE OVER-RULED

Major General Clare Chennault, commander of American airmen in China, often catches for one of the fliers' baseball teams.

"Imagine, if you can," asks the Camp Haan (Calif.) "Tracer," "a private as umpire arguing with a general over a pitched ball!"

New Castle Girds For Beaver Falls Game Friday Night

Coming Setto Initial Class AA WPIAL Brawl; Private Razzano In Finale

Fresh from their 38-0 victory over Grove City high, New Castle high's gridders this afternoon return to Taggart stadium to prepare for test No. 2.

The 'Canes go into action again Friday night when they start defending the class AA WPIAL championship they garnered last season, by meeting Beaver Falls in the neighboring town.

Checking Flaws

Coach Bridenbaugh and his staff today will explain the various flaws noted in the inaugural. For the next several days, the boys will set themselves to correcting the errors.

Private Tony Razzano, who joins the armed forces next Monday, begins his final week of training with the big 'Cane outfit this afternoon. The classy halfback, who played the "lead" in the backfield against GC, winds up his career for the duration against the valley Tigers.

Replacing the piano-legged 190-pounder looms as a giant problem. Jim Falk, who galloped 59 yards after snaring a pass interception, probably will fill the hole.

Physically, the locals emerged unscathed, excepting the run-o'-mine bumps and bruises.

Coach Satisfied

Coach Bridenbaugh was pleased with the showing. His after game comment was:

"For an opener, I think the boys did quite well. The first-game flaws were noticeable, that was expected. As a whole, I'm satisfied."

Beaver Falls, which tumbled by a 26-0 count last year, is built around two of last season's varsity hands, Campese and Tkacik. The remaining nine, with the exception of Devonshire and Gaugler, were reserves.

Tickets for the locals' first away tilt are on sale at the Sporting Goods store, North Mercer street.

Penn Prepares For First Clash September 25

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13.—George Munger, football mentor at Penn, today continued his efforts to strengthen the red and blue line.

In the fourth change made in two weeks of practice sessions the Quakers coach switched C. Hilyard Barr from right tackle slot to right guard. Prompted by Herb Nelson's excellent performance at guard, Munger feels that Barr, a substitute guard on the '42 frosh team, can handle the assignment.

Pennsylvania will open the season with Princeton, Sept. 25, at Franklin Field.

TIGERS-SERVICEMEN BATTLE WEDNESDAY

Carm DeLeone, west side sports enthusiast, plans to stage a baseball game between the West Side Tigers and local servicemen home on furlough.

The setto will be played on Lee avenue field on Wednesday night at 5:45. Jim Rote, George Schaas, Mitcheltree, Soho, Adams and Stush are among the local khaki wearers who will play. If you're a service man and desire to play, call DeLeone at 2551-M.

OLD TIME FOES

Villanova, on Princeton's schedule this year, was met in 1911, the Tigers winning that one, 31 to 0.

Many Certificates Given To Pupils For Employment

Total Of 876 Issued In Schools Since Start Of Present Year

Indicating the use of minors in industry due to the war is the total of working certificates issued by the public schools of New Castle from January 1 to September 10. According to figures released by Superintendent Frank L. Burton today, a total of 876 working certificates of all kinds were issued. This included age certificates, general certificates, vacation certificates, and farm and domestic certificates.

In the age certificate class, 156 have been issued this year as against 590 for last year. The decrease in this bracket is due to the fact that they are for boys between 18 and 21. With the drafting of 18-year-old youths, the applications fell off.

General work certificates, which are issued to boys between 16 and 18 jumped from 144 in 1942 to 360 thus far this year. Vacation certificates issued in 1942 were 226, this year 235. Farm and domestic certificates in 1942 totaled 172 and thus far this year 125.

The large increase is in the general group, boys between 16 and 18 now being employed in many industries.

Sergt. Stockman Nazi Prisoner

Previously Had Been Reported Missing In Action On Bomber Raid

Word has been received by Mrs. Stella Stockman, of Moody avenue, and James W. Stockman of 831 East Washington street, from their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Herbert Stockman of Detroit, Mich., that she had received a telegram from the War Department stating that her husband, Sergeant Herbert J. Stockman is safe, and is a prisoner held in Germany.

Sergeant Stockman, who is a son of Mrs. Stella Stockman and James W. Stockman, had been reported missing in action, six weeks ago.

Stockman was chief engineer and gunner aboard the army bomber "Tondelayo" christened by Hedy Lamarr, the screen star. The bomber did not return from the July 30 raid over Kassel, Germany. He was an employee of Cadillac Motors, Detroit, before his enlistment a year ago. He has a son aged two.

Another son, Private Lester Stockman, attached to the infantry, is stationed somewhere in Australia, and has been in service one year.

UPPERCLASSMEN TO BE SURPRISED

Changed Conditions To Greet Returning Students At Westminster

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Sept. 13 — Many surprises are in store for upperclass students who return to resume classes here at Westminster college tomorrow. Not the least of these will be the presence of soldiers on the mampus, an overwhelming proportion of women to men civilian students, and the absence of many former students who have entered the services.

Many co-eds will be startled when they discover that soldiers are occupying Browne Hall, former freshmen women's dormitory. Likewise, returning men will be astonished to find that the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity house has been taken over by freshmen girls.

These changes were made necessary when 300 soldiers of the 3324th Army Specialized Training unit arrived on the campus in mid-August. In addition to Browne Hall, the trainees are also quartered in Jeffers Hall, former men's dormitory, and in Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity house.

Of a large entering class of nearly 200 freshmen, the majority are women. Co-eds also predominate in the upper classes since all enlisted reserves were called to service. The large number of women students however will be balanced by an equally-large group of soldiers and naval aviation cadets. Including all groups, Westminster will have a larger enrollment than ever before.

Army trainees and naval cadets are grouped in separate classes and are not mixed with regular student classes.

STOCK MARKET TREND IS LOWER

Net Losses Of Day Are Slight; Steels And Rails Quiet And Steady

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 — The stock market turned irregularly lower today after buying at the opening added slightly to the modest gains of are past three sessions. Net losses on the day were slight.

Motors, oil, utilities and rubbers were among the lower groups. Chrysler, Standard Oil of California, Consolidated Edison, and U. S. Rubber were under slight pressure while Standard Oil of New Jersey, up fractionally, ran against the lower trend in the petroleum group.

Steels and rails were quiet and steady while communications and tobaccos were mixed. Aviation manufacturing issues, weak lately and merchandising stocks had fair support, moving fractionally higher.

J. I. Case rose 2 points to feature an otherwise dull and lower farm equipment group.

Trading was moderately active in the bond market with a few rail liens gaining fractions to more than a point.

Throughout the day many relatives and friends gathered at the Young home to offer best wishes and congratulations to the prominent and esteemed couple. Many beautiful gifts, flowers and cards from friends and well-wishers added enjoyment to the day. A short congratulatory talk was given by Burgess Clyde B. Houk.

As the guests came and went, they were served dainty refreshments amidst lovely decorations by Dorothy and Marian Young, Louise Gayle, Mrs. Gladys Mathay, granddaughters of the couple; Mrs. Cathine Gayle, a daughter, Mrs. L. S. Reno, a niece; and Mrs. Thad Young and Mrs. Arnold Young, daughters-in-law.

At 6 o'clock in the evening, the immediate family and close relatives and friends were served a sumptuous chicken dinner at the First Methodist church. Covers were arranged for 27 guests with a beautiful gold color scheme being followed in the appointments. A large tiered wedding cake, the gift of Mrs. Ellis McKee, New Castle, centered the table.

Among the out-of-town guests attending the celebration were: Mrs. L. C. Reno and W. H. Young, of Butler; Miss Stella Weigle, of Washington, D. C.; J. M. Hamilton and daughter, Irma, of West Sunbury; Mrs. Lucy Frendewey, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Ellis McKee and Mr. and Mrs. William McKee, of New Castle; and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Gibson, Sr., of New Wilmington.

SMALL GATE FENCE HALTS COAST GUARD

(International News Service)

ST. LOUIS—Fence gates wide enough to admit boats were recommended as a part of flood control measures at the Mississippi Valley Association conference here recently. Admiral Richard R. Woesche, the commandant of the U. S. Coast Guard, explained his recommendation. During the recent flood, an old woman waited on the second floor of her home to be evacuated. The Coast Guard arrived, but could not take its boat through the small gate without knocking down part of the fence. They explained the situation to the woman, who promptly announced that she would prefer remaining marooned rather than have her fence knocked down. The admiral didn't finish his story, but it was assumed the Coast Guard did its duty.

Coast Guard Sees Action With All Invasion Forces

By GRAHAM HOVEY
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

ABOARD A U. S. COAST GUARD ASSAULT TRANSPORT, in a Mediterranean Port, Sept. 13.—A bunch of the boys were laughing down in the dining salon an hour or so ago over a cartoon they found in one of the Coast Guard publications.

It showed a Guardsman landing an assault boat somewhere in the Southwest Pacific and blazing away at the Japanese defenders with a machine-gun at the same time. The outlines were: "And they told me I'd never leave Chesapeake Bay!"

They Get Around

Chances are a lot of folks still think that the Coast Guard protects the coast and let it go at that. The Guardsman in the cartoon had found out differently. The boys on this assault transport have known differently for a long time.

Some of them found it out last November, when they landed elements of the American Ninth division east of Algiers under heavy German aerial bombardment at the opening of the North African invasion. And if they needed any additionel proof that their organization is now a striking force rather than a defensive patrol outfit they got it several weeks ago when they again used their assault boats to take American soldiers ashore on Sicily.

The Coast Guard has participated in every American amphibious invasion of the war to date and it certainly will be in on all of them in the future. Ability of the Coast Guardsmen to handle small boats made it certain that a good many of them would spend a very small portion of the war in Chesapeake Bay—or even in American territorial waters.

Cross Section of U. S.

Perhaps it is unnecessary to separate the Coast Guard from the navy, since it actually becomes a part of the navy in wartime. Yet, the men of the Coast Guard retain their identity and although they work hand in hand with the navy, many of them have the feeling that their own organization never gets credit for the share it contributes to the larger service's successes.

And who are these men and officers of the U. S. Coast Guard? Well, they comprise a cross section of American citizens, just like the other services do.

Yes, there are all types in the Coast Guard. There's Lieut. Commander James S. Hunt, for example. Hunt was an automomile dealer in Detroit before his country got into World War II, and he resided at 900 Whitmore road in the Motor City. He has two boys, one of whom, Jim Hunt, Jr., is in the army's armored command.

Jim Hunt wanted to get into the first World War badly enough to enlist in the Lafayette Escadrille as a fighter pilot. Later he joined Britain's Royal Flying corps, the forerunner of the RAF. He won't talk much about that last scrap, but he hung around long enough to pick up the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Tried Stunt Flying

After the war he went in for stunt flying around Detroit and before the days when sky-writing was a common thing, he tried to write the word "Times" in smoke over the Motor City as a promotion stunt for the Detroit Times, but almost burned his plane up.

He was an officer in the Army Air Corps reserve, but knew he would never be permitted to fly in combat in this war because of his age. So he resigned his commission and joined the Coast Guard.

Neither was Lew Jenkins, the former boxing champion, when he joined the Coast Guard. You only have to look once at the battle-scarred face of the puncher from Sweetwater, Tex., to know that he means it when he says he is anxiously awaiting the next assault wave.

Coast Guardsmen come from all parts of the United States. Seaman first class Thomas A. Sheridan, who swam ashore in choppy surf nine times with soldiers who were being carried out to sea by the undertow during the Sicilian invasion, is from Brooklyn (2054 Kimball street). So is his signalman, Fireman second class Henry Meyers. But his engineer, Seaman second class Louis Meyer, is from Cincinnati, and his bowman, Seaman first class Martin W. Graybeal, is from Chester, Pa.

Seaman first class Calvin R. Cooper and Fireman first class Frank Freeman are both from Oklahoma, where the only sizeable body of water is Lake O' the Cherokees, created by Grand river dam. Cooper is from Oklahoma City and Freeman from Hastings. Boatswain's Mate first class Philip Kearney of Westlake, O., came into the Coast Guard naturally enough because he watched it operate out of nearby Cleveland, but how could you account for Boatswain's Mate second class Robert McCaulley of Sigourney, Iowa?

Captured War Equipment Will Be Shown In U. S.

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower notified Treasury Secretary Morgenthau that 13,000 tons of enemy equipment captured in the Sicilian campaign is being shipped to the United States for exhibition during the Third War Loan drive.

The exhibit, according to drive officials, will graphically demonstrate to Americans the types and quantities of equipment the United Nations must have in order to successfully meet the enemy in battle.

A war loan official said that the Nazi war tools, which will include every type of weapon from pistols to warplanes left behind by the Axis troops as they fled, was picked up by the American forces and packed into the 13,000-ton shipment.

American bond buyers will thus have an opportunity to see with their own eyes what our boys are up against, the official said, and why their dollars are needed to equip our soldiers to fight the Axis foe.

NEWS AND VIEWS AT CAPITAL

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Sept. 13—Gov. Edward Martin's anti-stream pollution committee, headed by Secretary of Internal Affairs William S. Livengood, Jr., appears to be bearing out his contention that "it's not just another committee" . . . The five-man group appointed several weeks ago is attacking the silt problem vigorously and already is promising a "material reduction" of silt from the Schuylkill watershed within a few months" . . . Obstacles to elimination of stream pollution are the municipalities, industries, and federal priorities on equipment.

The administration appears intent on eliminating pollution, even to a point where it must deviate from present policies . . . Prime objective is to have the municipalities set up silt removal projects in line with the administration's "home rule" policy . . . Livengood issued a warning, however, that "if they don't do it, the state will, causing a loss to the gains they have made in local government" . . . Governor Martin has constantly stated his belief that there should be more decentralization of government.

The Department of Justice maintains that it did not reverse itself in its decision to grant cost-of-living salary increases to substitute teachers under the Cordier-Hare act . . . Originally, the department handed down an opinion written by Deputy General William J. Rutter excluding substitutes . . . This opinion was recalled by Athorney General James H. Duff for "clarification because of widespread misunderstanding" . . . Last week a new opinion was issued by Harrington Adams, deputy attorney general, awarding the substitutes increased grants . . . Duff states that the department did not reverse its decision, explaining that the first opinion was recalled and cancelled and a new opinion was issued . . . Thus, legally, there exists no opinion which excluded substitute teachers from the act.

The state cafeteria at the main capitol buildings is closed, while workmen move the facilities to a new eating place . . . The old cafeteria was never empty of state workers, especially women, who several times daily took time off from their jobs to gossip there over something to eat or drink.

SHE TAKES A WALK

'WALKED TO DEATH'

(International News Service)

CAMP BLANDING, Fla.—Because a WAVE "just about walked him to death," Private Harry Kowal asked his sergeant for a bit of plaster as his GI shoes had rubbed an ankle. The sergeant advised the soldier to go to the dispensary. An examining officer promptly informed him that he had varicose veins and advised an operation. At the hospital it was discovered, too, that a hernia required immediate attention. Result, two months in the hospital. And all because of a stroll in the moonlight.

LONG on Expenses? SHORT of Cash?

TODAY'S increased cost-of-living and the new Pay-As-You-Go Tax leave a lot less from each pay check for everyday needs. And when expenses like dental and medical care, house repairs or insurance premiums come along, they put a dent in the budget. In such cases, have you ever considered the advantages of a Personal loan? It provides $10 to $250 or more repayable in sensible monthly amounts.

Loans at Personal are arranged simply and privately on your furniture, auto or signature. Co-signers are seldom required. To get a loan, come in, phone or write.
